Glue-sniff charges challenged

Two brothers accused of endangering children's lives by selling them glue-sniffing kits yesterday challenged the charges n a test case in the High Court in Edinburgh.

Khaliq Raja, aged 23, and Ahmed Raja, aged 28, of Boilton Drive, Glasgow, who run a shop in Salt Market, Glasgow, are accused of culpable and reckless conduct.

It is alleged that, over two years, they supplied at least 18 children aged between 8 and 15 with solvents, particularly glue, and containers such as crisp packets or plastic bags for inhalation.

It is further alleged that they knew the children intended to inhale the solvents and that they therefore caused or procured inhalation by the chil-dren. They are also charged with receiving stolen goods from nine of the children in exchange for solvents.

They are due to stand trial in the High Court in Glassow on September 19, but today's preliminary hearing was to decide whether the trial will go ahead.

Lord McCluskey, QC, for Khaliq Raja, said the main charge disclosed no crime known to the law of Scotland. A solvent was not an illegal or controlled substance, he said.

But Lord Mackey, the Lord Advocate, said: The point in this case is that the Crown are undertaking to prove the supply was for the purpose of inhaling solvents which causes danger to known to the law for Scotland.

Israeli forces moved tanks and armoured vehicles into the Kfar Falous barracks east of Sidon yesterday and evicted Phalangist militiamen after the Phalange apparently failed to respond to an Israeli order to close their barracks and offices in Southern Lebanon. No shots were fired. The Israeli military com-

troop withdrawal from Lebamand last week issued an order to the Phalange to evacuate all bases in Israeli-controlled territory in southern Lebanon in what was seen as a prelude to the partial Israeli withdrawal from the Chouf mountains to the Awali river. The Phalange at the time issued a statement saying they refused to comply. The Israeli takeover of the barracks sent an estimated 5,000 Christian civilians to the streets. The demonstrators burnt car tyres and rang churchbells in protest against the Israeli move. The Voice of Lebanon radio station said a 50year-old-woman and two young girls were injured when Israeli troops used rifle butts to disperse the crowd.

isiting country houses is still big business in Britain. As more owners are forced to open their doors to the public, out troop the public in their ever increasing millions to pay the necessary pound or two and make the tour. The reason is not always clear. To judge from their comments, a lot of visitors do not particularly like architecture (and why should they?), while family portraits and family history leave them cold. Nevertheless, cavesdropping makes it possible to identify one or two strands of unflagging interest.

As everyone knows, the casually arranged snapshots of the owners, their children and dogs, and of their possibly Royal friends and relations can be relied upon to excite a lively curiosity, as well, depending upon the individual, as awe, envy, class hatred or mirth.

The amount of work it takes to polish floors and dust cornices also generates comment. So does the thought that it was once done without vacuum cleaners. Perhaps the sentiment most regularly voiced, and the one that gives country-house visiting much of its popular romance, is simply: it could not be done today. The craftsmen do not exist, there is no money – and where are the magnificos to build?

Ten years ago, one might have agreed. There did not seem to be a future for the country house as a continuing tradition. In the past, building country houses required ambition as well as money – the ambition to establish your family and descendants in a position of ease, authority and invincible social prestige. And a precondition was confidence that the general state of things would continue long enough to make the effort worthwhile. The eighteenthcentury banker or nabob who commissioned Robert Adam sank large sums of money in activities that his children and grandchildren might enjoy more than himself. Such confidence became very difficult after the Second World War. It scarcely existed in the 1970s.

In Mrs Thatcher's Britain, the position is different. A sufficient number of people have done well and desire to set themselves up in the country to support a number - a small number - of architectural practices specializing in the country house. This shows a double commitment to architecture, because the chances are that it would be much cheaper to buy an existing eighteenth-century house than build a new one, even one smaller in scale. In addition, the eighteenthcentury has a cultural prestige with which the new might find it hard to

Admittedly the new country houses do not, by contrast with the claims of today's dottier right-wing architectural critics, compare in size or kind with Hatfield House or Burghley. They are not on the same scale or constructed with the same intentions as the great Edwardian mansions designed by Lutyens and his contemporaries. On the whole, they are not built with Quinlan Terry (top) earned his renown for Classical design with the commission of Kingswalden Bury (centre). One of his clients was Michael Heseltine, whose summer house at Thenford Hall, Northamptonshire (left) reflects the owner's taste for flamboyant Corinthian. In Terry's linocut of Dufours Place (right), the architect used his son as the model for the statue perched above the door.

The leading country house architect is Quinlan Terry, a tall, severe man in three-piece tweeds, whose office is in Dedham, on the Stour in Essex. That Dedham today is one of the most perfect English villages is largely due to his vigilance and that of his predecessor and master, Raymond Erith, who died in 1973. Erith was prepared to rush out from his office in a small Georgian house on the High Street and berate the man from the council who had come to paint yellow lines on the road or to erect signs. Often the man from the council went away. Building the public lavatory could not be stopped (public lavatories, Terry believes, are an evil, because they encourage charabancs), but it is sited so far from the road that only a wellrehearsed tour operator would know it was there. Terry still works from Erith's old office. I talked to him in a front parlour papered with pages from The Times, now tobacco-coloured with

In 1970, he and Erith finished work at Kingswalden Bury, in Hertfordshire, large, neo-Palladian house that replaced an unsightly Victorian monster. They thought it was the last job of its kind. But now, at 45, he is busier than ever with half a dozen country

Here are the values of born-again the general election of 1979.

Toryism in brick and stone. "If you've got some money, what nicer thing can you do with it than to build a house?" he says, in a mild, scholarly voice that belies the selfadvertisement. "You could spend it on a yacht or a racehorse, which is very temporary. But if you build a house, it's a monument to this age, to what you think of. And it goes on for your son and grandson." Architecture is still a passport to immortality, or at least to the likelihood of something of you surviving 100 years after your death. That is a significant part of its appeal.

> erry quotes a client for whom he recently built a house in Yorkshire: "When you see a building across a field, in a split second it tells you a lot about the chap who commissioned it. Doric or even Tuscan label. That he has done well, has been civilized, is fond of the land, likes hunting, is either moderate or extravagant."
> The men and women for whom Terry builds are various. On the whole, he prefers new money to old. Architects respond to the vigour, self-assurance and will to spend of the self-made entrepreneur, while the man with inherited wealth may be more cautious it is not an invariable rule: Kingswalden Bury was built for a 14th baronet.

The art of architecture, Terry believes, is not only to give his client what he wants but also to express the client's personality. This is done through the Classical language of architecture and the five orders, Tuscan, Doric, Ionic, Corinthian, and Composite. "Everybody is one of the five orders," Terry comments. Looking the photographs that have been published of Terry's summer house at Thenford Hall, Northamptonshire, it is clear that the client, Michael Heseltine, is a flamboyant Corinthian. "Both he and his wife thought so," Terry says. "But some people can't bear things like finials. This one is for a real oldfashioned aristocrat," he says, pointing to a more sober design. He likes a plain house, with a good roof, big overhanging eaves, no gutters, no valleys something that will last 200 years." This client will probably merit the

One difficulty for the present-day Classical architect is that the groundrules of Classicism cannot be taken as known. Some clients are connoisseurs in the old style; one in Warwickshire is currently flooding Terry with sugges-tions and urging him to make his house, ironically a remodelling of an eighteenth-century house, the boldest and most original of his career. Another client, on the other hand, in hanging on to what he has got. Or, as came to Terry after having seen an Terry puts it: "I am interested in article on an earlier Terry house in Country Life and asked for one like it.

A third had already realized his dream house, a rotunda, on canvas with the help of the artist Felix Kelly.

Surprisingly, the rotunda theme is perfectly adaptable to modern needs.

You get a raised basement floor, which is practical – kitchen, utilities. dining-room safe, gun room and everything else. You can protect that very well. Above that you have a ground floor which is just for parade, then a top floor which is quite economical for bedrooms. For modern living it is not totally ridiculous."

Yet Terry's recent houses do reflect some changes in ways of life. "Late twentieth-century requirements are different from mid-twentieth century requirements. More and more people are finding that they have got a big house which they can't comfortably live in. It's either too cold in the winter or it's too big. They tend to cut down on their social life. On the other hand, they do like to have 14 people round the dining-room table. But they don't like them staying the night quite so

"It means that in the last few years I've got terribly busy giving people who can afford it a little, grand house, Now, a little, grand house, when compared to a Victorian house, is a Georgian house."

An example of a little, grand house is Newfield near Ripon. It is approached by a double lime avenue, and flanked by big timber barns. There are wings projecting forward to either side. "Seen across the fields you think, wow, what a big house". When you get into the courtyard it is in fact a small into the courtyard it is in fact a small house, a very small house, with some scale about it."

ut it was not the style's suitability to modern needs that made Terry a Classicist. He rejects nearly every idea commonly accepted by the architectural establishment. He repudiates the present system of training utterly. Much better, he believes, is the pupil and master relationship of the eighteenth century, which was virtually how he learnt under Erith, after five fruitless years at the Architectural Association and a few agonizing months with the modernists Stirling and Gowan. Originality, he claims, is woefully overrated.

Terry keeps album after album of detailed drawings of buildings made on annual family holidays to Italy, and he quarries them for ideas. So fully is his imagination impregnated with the great buildings of the past that he says.

Think I am derivative in everything I

To Terry, Classicism is more than a style among others. He is a Christian, and holds the belief that the Classical revealed to Moses, on Mount Sina with the Ten Commandments. Their use derives not, as most theorists have claimed, from the primitive hut, but from the Temple of Solomon and the Tabernacle in the Wilderness.

To some extent, Terry's reputation for country houses has become a bugbear. Critics understandably write him off by suggesting that Classicism is all very well for a mansion, but not much else. A rich private client can afford to indulge his personal whims by all but ignoring the cost; the rest of us must fret over restricted budgets. Terry disagrees. Some years ago, he and Erith proved that very modest houses could be designed on Classical principles by building a row of romantic Classical cottages at Frogmeadow, at the end of Dedham village. Now Terry is designing a Classical office scheme off Broadwick Street, Soho, which has just reached the first floor. He sees this scheme, Dufours Place, as a chance to strike a blow for Classicism where the architectural struggle is fiercest.

It is not quite Terry's first office building he erected one with Erith at Gray's Inn in the 1960s. But at six. storeys plus attic, Dufours Place is three floors taller. "It's about as high as you can go without losing the commonsense values of Classicism. You can just manage if the lifts pack up. It is how people built all around Europe in the eighteenth century. And you can build in load-bearing brickwork - you don't need a concrete

A concrete frame means expansion joints, and they are "the beginning of the end". Inevitably pebbles get in or the pliable mastic with which the joints are filled comes out, so that the concrete cracks. Terry points out that no one knows how the technology of, for instance, Richard Rogers's new Lloyds Building will bear up after 200 years. Yet the quantity surveyor for Dufours Place regarded load-bearing brick as the revolutionary form of construction.

Will this herald a renaissance of brick Classicism as the vernacular in London. Load-bearing brick would be unsuitable for buildings much taller than Dufours Place because the thickness of the ground-floor walls would reduce the lettable office space. Yet Terry is already acquiring cult status on the other side of the Atlantic. It is adulation he is in two minds about. The use of the orders by Post-Modernist architects calls forth the epithet "Mickey Mouse Classicism".

The exquisite linocut of Dufours Place which is Terry's entry at the Royal Academy exhibition this year shows it to be fronted with a Baroque doorcase, upon which is perched Terry's son, holding Palladio's Quattro Libri di Architettura. Cruikshank would have liked it, Walt Disney possibly not.

Up the Amazon

As I am off to Brazil in October, my son is already acting in sympathy by washing his hands in what he terms the Amazon Basin. I meanwhile am downstairs in the no less illusory world of the teachvourself book, rehearsing the Portuguese for "Please senhor, may I have my head back." They tell me a child of live could master it. but I'm blowed

Unspeakable thooding, quite beyond local memory and precedent. Hailstones are shivering windscreens into trosted strips; whole flower beds have been woned that by the pelting: Ther's hammer is cracking the air in two and forked lightning is flashing down deep into the just of Richmond Green, With elemental drama such as this who needs tropical rain torests? Not my son certainly, who is oncerned, and rightly, for the weltare of the Indians in the park. The land drains have failed and their habitat is awash. A huge lake is swelling and swilling on the wooded camber that runs down to the perimeter wall. In due course no Jouly we shall count the drownings by number of bows and sodden quivers washed on to the horse track. Some devil in me hopes that Petranella has been caught in mid-wg and bludgeoned into the bracken. and I struggle to quell the fantasy. I inquire about the Indians, but the buy is obviously sworn to secreey.

Parvis Maitland, my horrible lawyer friend, turns up on the doorstep, uninvited as ever. As you know, he is now a circuit judge up Salop way. and I had dared hope he was too husy slapping down the felons of the Marches to bother again with me and mine. Alas, he has struck up a sinister rapport with my son, and seems genuinely concerned about the Indians. I have always had him down as one of nature's hanging judges, more inclined to demand that Brazil, on pain of international excommunication, discharge her hideous debt than to champion the rights of her profitless aboriginals. My son looks as though he is about to brief him and I am ordered from

More flooding. in my direction. Maitland's clear intention is to elicit from me some manifestations of guilt about what may or may not have happened by the park wall. I shall not be drawn into this. After Morgan Prewitt's birthday party tantrums the other week. I would give anything for a quiet life, and I suspect Maitland knows it. He is a skilled locator of Achilles heels, which is why he is where he is today,

A new arrival in the neighbourhood: it is Bobsy Marshall, a professional committee woman freshly decamped from Brent, where she passed herself off as the conscience of the community. She "drops by" for the sole purpose of checking out the park wall atrochies. Why me? Why me?

The lake (now mutated by one of childhood's philological mysteries into the Amazing Basin) has subsided and the road is a river. The egregious Bobsy Marshall is in her element; at any moment I expect to see her plying upstream in a currach sporting a Red Cross ensign.

Terra firma has reemerged, and with n Parvis Maitland - and Bobsy Marshall - both of whom "drop by" and subpoena my son for inevitable fact-finding mission to the park wall. An unholy alliance, this.

They return with a tiny, headless, black corpse. Fortunately for me (though not for The News of the Horla), it is plastic. It is Samba, one of the Maitland children's dolls allegedly kidnapped by some child before the flood and left to fend for herself in the merciless wild of the park. The Law (P. Maitland), the Caring Laiety (B. Marshall) and Utter Innocence (my son) are a menacing triumvirate, framed thus between the door jambs. I am suspected of complicity and promise to institute an inquiry, though quite why I cannot think. Daughter to the rescue: she bustles up the hall and explains that it is carnivorl time in the jungle, when such occurrences are commonplace. This throws Maitland who, prosaic and literal ic is, has never had to contend with such a verbally ambiguous counsel. He and Bobs Marshall melt away down the path like off-comers ill-versed in the regional mores. Which is what they are. Son and daughter retire to the bath for the pressing business of slaying the alligators that have come up the plughole with the floods, and I return to my teach-yourself book:

Please senhor, may I have my head back?" I bet Maitland wishes he had equipped the little black doll with a copy so that at least she could have survived to give evidence. But then we always knew the law was an ass. didn't we.

Beware the small print

Margaret Snijder was only 41 when she died of cancer in June, 1981, A divorcee, she had been left to bring up four children on her own. When she died, the two youngest, a boy and a girl. 13 and 11, were left in the care of Edward Gopsill, the bursar at the school where she worked as a

Three months before her death she appointed him executor of her estate. After her death he wrote to the pension scheme to which she contributed from her modest salary, asking for the money due her children which he planned to invest on their behalf. He was told it amounted to just over £400. He was shocked that it was so little - and no wonder. If Margaret Snijder had been a man her children would have received £13,000.

When Margaret had joined the school she told Edward Gopsill she wanted to take part in a Federation Group Pension Schemes (FGPA) plan for employees in nursing social and charitable work. Members pay in 5 per cent of their earnings, the employer pays in 10 per cent, and a pension is provided on retirement. But the scheme rules for death-inservice benefits - the lump sum a family receives if the breadwinner dies before retirement - are vastly more generous to dependants of men than of women. A man's family receives cash equivalent to two and a half times his annual salary. Margaret's children were entitled merely to a return of contributions plus 3 per cent interest.

Mr Gopsill was shattered, "! simply could not believe it when I was informed that £434 was all the children were entitled to from the pension scheme. I felt, and still feel, that it was my fault. I did not look at the rules carefully enough. It did not occur to me that pension schemes could discriminate against women in this way any more. I thought this had been outlawed by legislation. There is no question that the rules were sent to us at the time. But Margaret never realized, I never realized and I'm certain many other women don't realize that they and their families can be discriminated against in this fashlon.

After taking legal advice Mr Gopsill went to the Equal Oppor-tunities Commission, which backed a case against FGPS. But there were difficulties. The case was out of time and there was much legal heartsearching about the section of the Sex Discrimination Act under which a case could be brought. A few weeks ago the case of Margaret Snijder's executor against FGPS was dis-missed at Epsom County Court. The judge said there was no case to Matters relating to death or retirement are specifically excluded from the Equal Pay and Sex Discrimination Acts. Neither FGPS nor the thousands of other pension schemes in Britain that provide inferior benefits for women employees are doing anything illegal.

Arthur Wilcock, general manager of Federated Group Pension Schemes, defends the rules that left Mrs Snijder's children with so little. It is a fact that it costs more to provide a pension for a woman than a man," he said. "Women live longer than men and therefore will receive their pension for more years after retirement. To balance this we give the men higher death benefits. It is unfair to look at that part of the scheme in isolation from the rest,"

Having successfully defended its position in court his organization offered the Shijder children an ex gratia amount of £7,500 from charitable funds.

brother and have recently gone to start a new life with him in Australia. For them the future looks relatively optimistic, but what worries the Equal Opportunities Commission is how many other women and their families find themselves short-changed by this loophole in the law. Barbara Ford, of the ECC, says: "We have repeatedly asked the Government to amend the law. One major obstacle is the difference in retirement ages for men

Widespread inequality

• How widespread is the discrimination that Margaret Snijder's death brought to light? The scheme she was in is not typical of the more common employer's scheme. There are tens of thousands of pension schemes in the country and each has its own rules about benefits. Discrimination against women through payment of lump sum death benefits is probably unusual though women should still check. But most schemes are discriminating against women and their families in other ways.

The most widespread inequality is that though payment of a widow's pension to the wife of a male employee who dies either before or after retirement is automatic in virtually all private and public-sector schemes, two-thirds of them do not extend the same right to survivors of a female employee.

Some schemes will pay the benefit to a husband who has been dependent on his breadwinning wife because, for instance, he is disabled or unemployed. But just under half the pension schemes that took part in a 1982 survey by the National Association of Pension Funds paid no pension even to these dependent husbands. One obstacle to reform is the fact that the state pension scheme and public-sector schemes such as those for teachers and doctors discriminate against women employees. Another is the deep-seated notion that men are the main Arguments about the cost of women's pensions are irrelevant, according to Robin Ellison, a solicitor and pensions expert, who advises companies, trustees and trade unions on pensions. He said: "The trouble with the present way of looking at pensions is that the actuaries who do the sums are trained to regard men and women as members of two distinct groups, instead of looking at their needs as

"The whole point about pensions or any kind of insurance is that need protection. And these days it is quite clear that men and women need equal protection."

upstairs, madam, and have a teeshirt on the house? We'll drive you to your train or at least have a cup of tea? Not a bit of it. Senior Dawson thinks a while, drums his fingers on the desk, gives me a cool, hard look, says finally with the wisdom of many years' store sleuthing: "Well madam, after considering all the facts in your case I am prepared to give you the benefit of the doubt on this occasion . . . However before we can let you leave we will require your name and address."

That evening I told my husband what had happened. He fired off a letter next morning and demanded an explanation, with an apology taken for granted.

Five days later the 'phone rang at home. It was the managing director. "What can I say, madam", he began. "What can I do to make this up to you." I never heard any more about the letter, but there was a great deal more about the problems of shoplifting, the tact with which store detectives are taught to act, and a regrettable breakdown in the system.

The managing director did eventually reply to my husband's letter. He was unimpressed to read that the Dawson Squad had apparently been subjected to some-thing slightly less painful than being beaten over the head with one of the store's numerous By Appointment coats of arms and told to mend their ways. But the nasty taste remains. That and the nagging doubt about how many other innocent shoppers are swept up by an condemned never again to show their face in a shop with a clear con-

World of the pancake

Crespelle, galettes, crepes, pan nequets, flensjes, blintzes and und nalésniki are a modest paneake repertoire. Some, like tragile Breton galettes a foot or more across, or Chinese spring roll wrappers, require greater definess than occasional gancake makers can muster. But most demand no extraordinary desternly or fancy ingredients.

With savoury stuffings and simple sauces there are pancake dishes for all kinds of summer meals from one frying pan cook-ups on the river bank to something more elaborate on the patio. And it is not just the fillings that can be varied. Batters based on buckwheat and wholewheat flours make excel-

TALKBACK

From Joanne Bower, vice-president, Quaker Concern For Animal Welfare, 4 Willfield Way, London NW11.

Margaret Legum's article on animal experiments (July 27) is most important. This is primarily a moral issue and in this nstance a return to Victorian alues might well be salutary, as there was then a powerful opposition to such practices. These have greatly increased in number and cruelty since that ime, especially in the psychological field, as Margaret Legum points out, and a welcome resurgence of the public conscience in these matters is now evident.

Should we pause in our headlong scientific advance and ask ourselves what is the purpose of the human race? If it s a progression to a spiritual olane, which all religions indicate, then any deliberate cruelty must be regarded as retrogression. There is a general idea that certain experiments which may be beneficial to humans or animals are acceptable, but where does one draw the line?

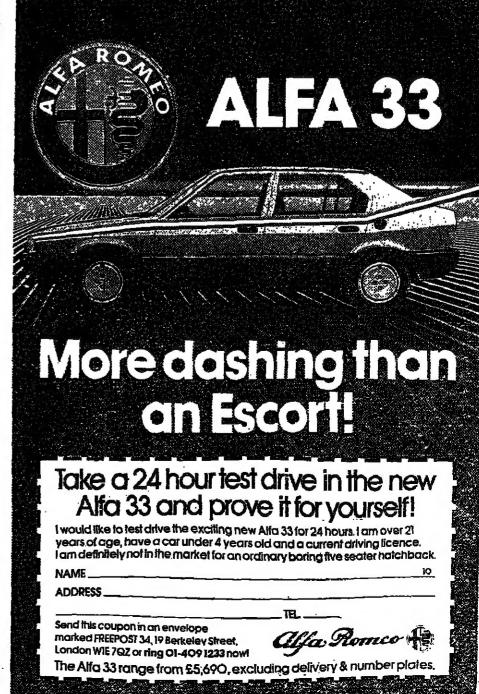

Should we not rather be ooking deep into our human institutions, many of which produce the very problems especially the psychological ones - which we try to transfer

Your recent correspondence on sleep prompts me to ask if any other readers of The Times suffer from what I can only call continuous dreaming: dreams every night and all night long. of procuring dreamless sleep?

It is a pity that magazines so seldom name the young women who adorn their covers. It is particularly sad in the case of the latest issue of Weight Watchers. Robert Maxwell, having failed in his plan to merge Oxford United and Reading, has run into more trouble with football fans. This time it concerns the BPCC trade mark of his British Printing and Communi-cation Corporation, which changed its name from British Printing Corporation in March 1982. The new style is being contested by another BPCC - the British Programme Collectors Club of Hessle, North Hamberside, run by football statistician Norman Lovett Lovett claims he has been using the BPCC initials since 1972, and that Maxwell's appropriation of an extra C is causing him loss of trade. "The British Programme Collectors Club and its mark BPCC are known follow football", Lovett claims, "but I cannot compete against Maxwell as BPCC. One of us has to go".

Beirut echoes for the Tamils in torment

Colombo It is only the yard of a Hindu temple, outside Colombo, but in this small space 5,000 people are trying their racial origin - for they are Tamils - and their fear.

During the nights and days of Sinhalese violence last week the people now in the camp watched their homes and businesses burn. their property ransacked, their belongings scattered.

One middle-aged man said he had been sheltered by neighbours.
"When the rioters came to my house I just had to sit there and watch everything go", he said. A woman in her late thirties told me: "We saw them come to the front of our house. They were waving sticks and swords. We just ran out and over the back

Some of the refugees wear bandages and plasters. "We were beaten", they say simply. One man with a pad of gauze and plaster on his scalp was brought to me. A Red Cross worker explained: "He went to the hospital and they did this to him there. It was not the doctor. The doctors were very good - but the other staff....

People mill aimlessly about the temple yard, as closely packed as ocople in Petticoat Lane on a Sunday morning. They have little to do except worry. "Where do you sleep?" I asked one person. "Right here", he said, pointing at the sandy ground, "We are just happy that it. has not rained since we arrived."

Some nearby school buildings are also being used to house hundreds of people, who sit on the floor - men, women and tiny children together as though waiting for a public meeting to begin. Two taps and two toilets serve the whole camp. A row of additional toilers with bright red doors are locked, reserved for the temple priests, whose cleanliness must never be defiled.

Initially, of course, food was also in short supply. The sudden arrival of the refugees and the confused circumstances made organization were being delivered as I walked about. The refugees were sure of at least one meal a day.

The food problems seem likely to continue. But the main worry for most of the inhabitants is security. The temple walls are not high, and access is through a low, wrought-iron gate. Outside, a policeman sits. and a military patrol stands guard at the top of the road.

The camp people feel vulnerable as hostages to reprisals from the gangs of Sinhalese goondas (thugs) who drove them from their homes in the first place. The example of the Sabra and Chatila refugee camos in Beirut is never far from their minds. Official figures show that there are 48.000 refugees in camps throughout the country, but according to relief workers. Colombo alone holds more Relief workers say the camps are sanitary. Now that food and fuel are getting in, additional latrines are being dug and camp committees are being formed. Difficulties still occur with the removal of garbage and the lavatories and water. One camp has only one tap and people have to line up for hours to get water.

A British worker for Voluntary Service Overseas has had to seek asylum in a refugee camp after the college he was working at had been burned down by gangs of Sinhalesc

Len Putnam, a teacher at a college in the plantations of Uva Province. was acting as principal of the college, which gives training to estate workers. When the Sinhalese at-tacked the college last week he had to run across some open fields, and eventually arrived at a convent in the centre of town, which is being used to house refugees. Mr Putnam, who is in his fifties, is the only European in the camp. He is being lodged in the bishop's house at the convent. The VSO organization in Colombo is waiting for the right moment to evacuate him.

Thirty-four British volunteers from VSO have been working in the country and all have been accounted for except for one other, also in the plantation area, whose telephone is

The Tamils, meanwhile, must also wait. The government is offering to transport the refugees to the north of Sri Lanka, where the Tamil population predominates and where many, though not all, have friends and relatives. Ships are being adapted to take them up the coast. One refugee was pleased. "I don't think it would be safe going by train or road," he said. Two cargo boats have now left carrying more than 1,000 people.

But the refugees are likely to face acute problems in the North, too, where there is insufficient accommodation and water is not plentiful.

the Jaffna district, where the population is 95 per cent Tamil, is mostly quiet although there are said to have been several incidents of ill-treatment of local inhabitants by

The local hospital in Jaffna has been unable to undertake operations because of a shortage of medical supplies and drugs, and there are fears that the arrival of 8.000 refugees on boats from the South will cause acute hardship in the crowded towns.

The reports will not stop the refugees. "This has happened before. you know," said a tall, dark man. The last time was not as bad as this, but we came to this temple as well. We were taken to the North: and after things settled down, we came back. I expect we shall come back again, too, soon. There are not British citizens in the North say enough jobs up there."

Torpedoed? More like scuttling

A year or two ago I ran into one of our more successful entrepreneurs the day after his appointment as chairman of a nationalized industry had been announced. "Are you out of your mind?" I asked politely. "Oh no, there's method in my madness", was the reply. "It enables me to quit the National Enterprise Board:

I saw his point. Nevertheless running a public corporation has little obviously to commend it, unless of course you can get yourself a transfer fee a la MacGregor. The new arrival from the private sector finds himself confronted with limitless Whitehall intervention, the whims of ministers with an eye to votes, an obligation to satisfy the sometimes idle curiosity of the legislators, and a totally unionized and often militantly organized labour force. He then finds that his remuneration for his pains, albeit modest by the standards of the private sector, is the subject of an annual wrangle and abuse.

So Sir Robert Atkinson's farewell message from British Shipbuilders after three years' hard labour deserves sympathetic understanding. It needs it, too, Announcing that. the corporation lost more than £117m in its last financial year, even though the Government offers a solid gold gift-wrapped coffee-pot or two to every customer, he tells us that this "demonstrated once again the underlying viability of the industry." "Once again" is an especially appealing grace-note.

Now I read in my Times on the authority.

Monday morning, on the authority of Mr Gerald Kaufman, that all that's really wrong with British shipbuilding is the shameful lack of patriotism of its potential British customers. The Belgians buy their ships at home, as do the French, and of course the Japanese. So why can't the British shipping lines do likewise? Perhaps it depends on whether they want ships or cash. Provided you don't mind when, or even whether, the vessels you have ordered are delivered, and find that compensation can be good for cash flow (and one can easily imagine customers with such preferences in the present state of the world shipping market), then Scott Lithgow on the Clyde is obviously the place to go. Up to £100m in penalty payments in respect of goods worth £150m is not to be sneezed at Unless, of course, you happen to be a British taxpayer, in which case you may be tempted to wonder whether this is the ideal way to use your

Sir Robert Atkinson tells us that these little local difficulties will be non-recurring. Perhaps we had better keep our fingers crossed. For as Sir Robert also acknowledged. there does seem to be some incidence of industrial deafness at Scott Lithgow (and one or two other places, for that matter). I do not see how we could expect it otherwise -not through any fault of Sir Robert, but through the actions of successive governments over many years. Sir Robert tells Scott Lithgow bleakly.

"One cannot carry on with a company with 5,000 deaf men". The trouble is that the Clydeside shippard workers have been given that message – or something similar – repeatedly for 15 years, starting with Mr Wedgwood Benn, no less, in 1968. And every time they have found that the politicians didn't mean it. Why should they believe it this time - even if this time it is for real, as perhaps it will be?

That, in a nutshell, is the question which Mr Kaufman and others like him carefully avoid. Most people would probably accept the need for a national capacity to build warships. And it may well be that work would on occasion have to be found to keep that capacity in existence when the Ministry of Defence was strapped for cash and the world awash with surplus shipping. But using a public corporation as a cash transfusion service for BP when that company cannot get the vessels it has ordered (or for that matter as a provider of badly needed bard currency to the Polish Government. which was more or less how British Shipbuilders was treated by the Callaghan government) is a vastly different matter. It is not immediatly apparent that reliance on foreign hipyards for the supply of merchant shipping would be an excessive price to pay for release from future resort to such subterfuges to keep the likes of Scott Lithgow on the payroll (and the fact that others are prepared to subsidize their shipyards makes this alternative more commerically attractive, and not less).

Now it is up to Mr Graham Day, Sir Robert's named successor. His task, we are told, will be to prepare the warship yards and ship-repairers for the private sector. If he can also convince the merchant shipping yards that their future genuinely hinges on performance after all these years of crying wolf, he will earn his transfer fee twice over.

Mondale and the Foot factor

Morton Kondracke parades the spectres of failures past that could tilt the balance against Reagan's main Democratic challenger

American political writers seem set on the notion that former Vice-President Walter Mondale, frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination, is haunted by shosts. They simply cannot agree on how many. David Broder of the Washington Post named one: former Senator Edmund S. Muskie, the 1972 front-runner whose candidacy collapsed in its first test. Another writer added the failed presidency of Mr Jimmy Carter, in which Mondale was partner, and the image of Mondale's mentor, the late Senator Hubert Humphrey, the oldfashioned interest-group liberal whom Mondale is increasingly accused of resembling

has been added to the list. In America be is preceived as the symbol of a political party gone too far left to attract popular support; the Democrats, some commentators say, have a mild case of Labour's Mondale's other newly discovered ghost actually has been around for a long time. It is that of Mondale himself - the Mondale of November 1974 who announced after a year of campaigning for the 1976 Democratic nomination that he did not want to spend the rest of his life in Holiday Inns. He said: "I do not have the overwhelming desire to be president which is essential for the kind of campaign that is required".

All of Mondale's ghosts reflect the widely-held doubts about his ability to win election and govern well. He is well aware of them all, and the efforts he and his advisers are undertaking to exorcise the ghosts convey a sense of how he is conducting his pursuit of the presidency.

The 1974 Mondale is the easiest to dispose of. Nominally a Washington lawyer, he has been planning or otherwise working on the 1984 presidential race ever since the Carter-Mondale ticket lost to the Republican team of Reagan and Bush in 1980. This year, Mondale will be on the road to make specches, raise money and organize his forces on an average of six or seven days a week, three weeks per month. And he will stay in Holiday luns without a murmur.

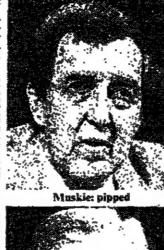

What has happened to change his mind? He said: "In 1974, deep down I knew I wasn't ready to be president. Now, I know I am. I've had the experience of working in the White House. I know how things are done and how mistakes get made. I'm convinced I can run the government, that I've got the vision.

I believe I can be a good president" Which brings up the ghost of Jimmy Carter. How to handle the memory of Carter's presidency and his own involvement in it has been a ticklish issue for Mondale. Cartoonists and presidential rivals often seek to tie Carter's failures around Mondale's neck, But when Mondale tries to point out differences he had with Carter, he is accused of disloyalty and ingratitude.

So, Mondale now expresses gratitude and loyalty to Carter for the opportunity to be vice-president while asserting that Carter's mistakes were part of the training programme that qualifies him to be PHS president. If asked, Mondale will

Mondale: aware of the dangers

Humphrey: too many ties

enumerate some of his differences with Carter - he says he opposed the post-Afghanistan embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union. MX missile deployment and Carter's sale of F-15 fighter planes to Saudi Arabia – but he is much happier These include how to find falent to staff an administration, how to set priorities, inculcate discipline in subordinates and organize a national security structure that will not result in the usual backbiting and bickering between the White House, State Department and Pentagon. Mondale says that instead of the listing the things he learned.

myriad purposes to which Carter set nimself, his administration would have four or five fundamental thrusts". These include economic growth, "human talent development", international competitiveness, moderate and sustained defence growth, determined efforts to secure arms control and "a foreign policy that is coherent, credible, durable and persuasive, with a moral underpinning." On both foreign and domestic policy. Mondale is considerably to the left of the Reagan administration, as are all the other Democratic candidates, including Mondale's principal 1, the senator and former astronaut John Glenn. All criticize the administration for favouring the rich by cutting taxes while imposing benefit eductions on the poor.

All would spend less than Reagan on defence and more on education and job-creating public works. They are all against the MX missile, favour a negotiated nuclear weapons freeze with the Soviet Union (though they have not made much of an issue of cruise missiles in Britain or Pershings in Germany) and they oppose US aid to anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua. These positions may sound quite to Europeans. Most Democratic proposals are probably even to the right of those favoured by Britain's social democrats. But still he is haunted by the ghost of Michael Foot, and even more so by that of Hubert Humphrey. In his day, Humphrey represented the quintessence of a Democratic Party closely tied with labour unions, blacks, Hispanics, consumer groups, environmentalists and other interest groups. The charge against Mondale is that he cannot say no to anybody, and that by saying yes to everybody, the Democratic Party will inevitably commit itself to policies so far to the left of America's political centre that it will certainly lose the 1984 election.

To this. Mondale says that the real "special interest candidate" in 1984, if he runs, will be Ronald Reagan, who during his presidency hasn't said no even once to defence contractors, environmental polluters, segregationist schools, corporations or rich people". As to the Democratic constituent groups, he said, "I am not to turn my back on my friends, but I am not their captive. I want to see the national interest served, but you cannot do that by refusing to listen to people who represent other people". One of Carter's big mistakes, say Mondale aides, is precisely that he thought he could govern without listening to the constituencies which helped elect him. As a result, he had no friends when the going got rough.

Mondale is especially dismissive of the Foot parallel. "The Labour Party committed suicide", he said. They were almost isolationist in terms of the (Nato) alliance and the Common Market. They were talking about all kinds of new nationalization schemes. They picked leader-ship that was unsteady and unpersuasive. I saw polls that showed that Denis Healey might defeat Margaret Thatcher - in other words, a pragmatic progressive was maybe what the people were looking for. But he didn't get a shot at it".

Still, Mondale does not give adequate attention to a tendency within his party to move left during the primary election stage of a presidential campaign as the rival candidates try to out-do each other for the allegiance of special interest activists. Strong anti-nuclear and isolationist sentiments, for example, affect the Democratic parties of Iowa and New Hampshire, where the first tests of 1984 will take place. Those sentiments are being exploited by Senator Alan Cranston, who has made the nuclear freeze centerpiece of his campaign. If Cranston seems to be succeeding there will be leftward pressure on all the other candidates, including Mondale.

But Edmund Muskie's spectre remains the most important for Mondale. It is that of a supposed "sure thing" whose support proved tin one of America's favourite political cliches) "a mile wide and an inch deep" and had no capacity survive adversity. In 1972 Senator George McGovern had an issue (the Vietnam war) and an intense following which over-whelmed Muskie in the New Hampshire primary.

The worst-case scenario for Mondale-as-Muskie in 1984 would be that Alan Cranston pulls away the anti-nuclear vote; that the Rev Jesse Jackson, a disciple of Martin Luther King, decides to run and draws away Mondale's black support: that Senator Glenn convinces people that he alone can defeat President Reagan, pulling away the pragmatic politicians, and that Mondale is left with nothing, or at least too little to win the nomination.

The Mondale campaign's answer is unreleating effort and minute attention to detail. It aims to create an organization so big that it can withstand any adversity, yet suffi-ciently flexible to anticipate oppor-tunity and take advantage of it. Mondale's campaign has already raised more than $5m - double the amount of the other five candidates put together. The campaign staff consists of the best veterans of the 1976 and 1980 Carter campaigns.

Mondale has been endorsed by members of Congress, local politicians and leaders of black, women's and Hispanic groups. He is thought to be far ahead in pursuit of the AFL-CIO's first-ever endorsement of a presidential candidate. He is negotiating terms to keep Jesse Jackson out of the race. And although the polls show that Glenn is gaining steadily. Mondale's advisers are confident they have constructed a machine that will outlast anything the ex-astronaut can assemble.

Give Nicaragua a chance

armed conflict tends to generate simplistic labels. Even so, it was disappointing last week to find BBC television ventriloquizing the Voice of America on its Nine O'Clock News by referring, in a straight report to "the Marxist government" in Nicaragua. This shorthand crudely misrepresents the character of the Nicaraguan regime. Its three-member coalition junta includes Dr Rafael Cordova Rivas, a leading figure in the Democratic Conservative Party, whose nearest equivalent in this. country would be Sir Ian Gilmour. Far from being a fully socialized ecoporny. Nicaragua has, in fact, a larger private sector (59 per cent of gross domestic product) than Thatcherite Britain. Nor is the Nicaraguan regime completely tied to the coat-tails of the eastern block; 43 per cent of its aid, according to the latest available figures (1981), comes from

Most on-the-spot observers, including many who are aggressively anti-Marxist, have a favourable impression of what the new government has achieved since it toppled the Somoza dictatorship. An all-party British parliamentary delegation concluded that "there is much to praise in Nicaragua. The new government has made a determined attack on poverty by raising the living standards of the poorest and has made impressive chievements in the fields of literacy, health and education."

But just as the Nicaraguan government has been crudely caricatured by the right as a Stalinist state, so there has been a corresponding tendency on the left to romanucize the aftermath of the 1979 revolution. The spectacular growth rate achieved in 1980 and 1981 has petered out in the face of deepening recession, something close to an investment strike in the private sector, and the economic reprisals of the United States. Tensions have mounted, as the right has chafed under Attlee-style austerity measures, while a section of the left has become increasingly frustrated by the unwillingness of the government to press ahead with further nationalization.

These pressures, combined with nese pressures, compined with military raids by American-backed insurgents based in Honduras, provoked the government to adopt emergency powers in 1981 that curbed freedom of expression by opposition groups and newspapers. At least seven leading dissidents (from both left and right) were imprisoned under these powers but were subsequently released.

But the systematic use of police torture and the killing of dissidents that characterized the previous tyrannical regime has come to an end. The country is also free of the death squads linked to security forces that terrorized communities in El Salvador and to a lesser extent, Honduras, portrayed in American propaganda as bastions of freedom and democracy.

Much play has been made of the fact that no election has been held in Nicaragua since the revolution in 1979. An election has been promised, however, for 1985 and a government commission is currently investigating different methods of election in western countries as a prelude to this. What sort of recommendation the commission makes will be closely scrutinized in the light of the largely bogus elections that President Reagan frequently cites as evidence of "budding democracy" in nearby states under American tutelage. In the case of Honduras, the military retained the right to veto all cabinet appointments, while the choice offered the depleted electorate of El Salvador was limited in the words of the British observer, Lord Chimis. to "that between an impotent and split Conservative Party under the thumb of the military, and a murderous version of the National

Of course, President Reagan, the best auto-cue reader in contemporary politics, is following a script dictated by American interests. His main concern is not so much the development of human rights and freedom, as the maintenance of American influence in Central America. The Nicaraguan revolution is a threat to these interests because it could inspire similar uprisings against corrupt but com-pliant dictatorships sustained by the American government.

The continued support of the Nicaraguan government among its own people has so far insulated it from American reprisals: American funding of opposition groups inside Nicaragua has failed to mobilize popular opposition to the govern-ment. Economic hardship induced by the cancelling of aid and the stashing of the sugar import quota has not destabilized the government. Even the covert war waged by Clafinanced rebels, mostly recruited from the murderous former National Guardsmen, has not provoked the expected response from disenchanted groups.

That is why the American government seems to be moving wards a final, more drastic solution: a direct invasion of Nicaragua by its puppet government in Honduras with whatever backing is needed to make it successful. This would be as deplorable an act of aggression as Russia's invasion of Afghanistan. And it should provoke every bit as much protest, not least since Britain, as an ally of America. is in a position to influence American policy in a way that it is not able to sway that of Russia. But even if American gunboat diplomacy is stopped, there is sadly an insidious way in which it may yet succeed. The more economic and military pressure the United States generates, the more it will promote authoritarian and centralizing pressures within Nicaragua. If these pressures gain impetus within a beleaguered economy they will discredit the hopes and aspirations that the revolution gave rise to.

CRYING MURDER

Cardinal O Fiaich, the Roman men arrived on the scene. There catholic Archbishop of Armagh, has pronounced as "murder" the was a single shot and Malone gate. Among the victims' family fatal shooting of Martin Malone collapsed and died, shot through by a member of the Ulster the chest. The RUC's brief Defence Regiment in Armagh early on Saturday morning. The Cardinal was speaking from the pulpit of his cathedral during the young man's funeral service on at the scene. Monday.

wig, a mitre or a green eyeshade, is yet competent to make that pronouncement. To murder is for a person of sound mind and of the age of discretion unlawfully to kill another with malice aforethought, either express or implied by law. It is a defence to murder that the killing was caused by the use of reasonable force in the prevention of crime or effecting lawful arrest, elements which include self-defence. The Cardinal will have been given circumstantial accounts of the death as contained in the evidence of eyewitnesses carefully recorded by priests of his diocese. Those accounts very likely suggest that a murder was committed. But one begs leave to doubt if the Cardinal has access, direct or indirect, to the evidence of the members of the UDR patrol. Without that knowledge it is unsafe to cry murder. It is particularly unsafe for one in cardinal's robes to cry murder.

From the partial accounts of the incident that have been published it appears that a small group of young men and women were gathered and chatting near the centre of the city at one a.m. on a warm summer's night. They were approached by an armed UDR patrol of men and women soldiers, who asked questions and took particulars. Some refused to answer. Other young preliminary statement about the incident said nothing of Malone or any other of the group being armed or of firearms being found

This is the seventh man to be No one, whether he wears a shot dead by police or soldiers in county Armagh in the past eighteen months. It is frequently alleged, and as frequently denied, that the security forces have a policy of "shoot to kill" IRA and INLA suspects. The outward and visible facts do not point persuasively to that conclusion. The tension caused by the open policy of the terrorist organizations to kill soldiers and policemen on and off duty, the alertness to danger and quick reaction on which survival thus depends, provide an alternative and adequate explanation of the pattern of shootings, though not of course a full explanation of any one of them.

Soldiers and policemen have no licence to kill in Northern Ireland that they do not possess in other parts of the United Kingdom. Their action is subject to the requirements of common. law, the two chief elements of which, if the shooting is to be lawful, are that the situation must be one of the commission or apprehension of serious crime and that the force used is no greater than might reasonably be supposed to be necessary to prevent the crime or escape, or in self-defence. The just application of those rules in any case crucially depends on the thorough investigation of the facts. It is at that point that the suspicions and complaints of Cardinal O Fiaich was shoving and scuffling. There speaks most excusably congre-was a single shot and Malone gate. Among the victims' families and community the RUC is likely to be considered as trustworthy an investigating agency as is the Metropolitan Police by the denizens of Railton Road in Brixton. The RUC's inquiries, if thorough, are cer-tainly not speedy. The director of public prosecutions to whom the police report will make a laconic announcement that there are insufficient grounds for proceeding farther, if that is his conclusion which it usually is, and the true nature of the circumstances of the death will remain unclear. It is however quite wrong to suggest that members of the security forces never stand trial for unlawful killing in Northern Ireland. They do, but seldom. Seldom too is anyone suspended from duty while inquiries are made.

There is none of that electrified reaction on the part of authority to a possible miscarriage, as happened in London when Mr Stephen Waldorf was shot (not killed) by police in mistake for another man. Of course, the state is under attack in Ulster by political gangsters who have no scruple and no reserve, and that is an inevitably callousing experience. The vicious hatred of the attack can be read from the details of the trial of 38 defendants which is just coming to an end in Belfast after 117 days. But the state is defended from that attack in the name of legitimate authority, of civil peace and the rule of law. It behoves those bearing that responsibility to keep intact the doing of justice and the appearance of justice, most especially when the actions of their own agents are called in question.

YUGOSLAVIA TAKES ITS MEDICINE

facing up to the growing crisis in Yugoslavia. At the joint session of the Assembly last week, the Prime Minister, Mrs Milka Planinc, emphasized the the comprehensive "stabilization programme" would involve profound changes in the life of time to every citizen. She spoke of the industry. need to free industry from excessive constraints, reduce state intervention, and shock the economy out of its present stagnation. The Party leader, Mr Dragoslav Markovic, maintained at the Central Committee meeting which endorsed the programme that the radical reforms would not mean "political isolationism". On the contrary, Yugoslavia will be linked even more closely with the countries of Western Europe. This should be good for Yugoslavia-and for the West. The need for change has become increasingly evident in the political vacuum which Yugoslav leaders themselves admit followed the death of Tito. But in the last decade of Tito's rule there was such stagnation in government that extensive innovation was delayed by his successors, who were more concerned with maintaining stability. Now change is being dictated by economic necessity. After six months of tough negotiations, emergency loans worth $4,000 million were agreed with fifteen Western countries, Japan, the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. But this will do little more than ease the immediate burden of debts totalling some $20,000

Inflation has been running at over 30 per cent, and many internal transactions are conducted in dollars rather than dinars. Unemployment tops 12 per cent; if the thousands working abroad are included, it approaches 20 per cent. Many "guest workers"

Tito's successors are at last in Western Europe fell victim to the general slump and returned home to swell the number of unemployed and the large sums of hard currency they had formerly sent back to their family in Yugoslavia were lost to the economy. Nor is it a good time to expand the vital tourist

The extent to which Yugoslavia's six republics and two autonomous provinces are affected by the economic crisis varies greatly, adding considerably to nationalist tensions: Unemployment in Kosova and Macedonia, for example, is more than sixteen times higher than in industrialized Slovenia. Albanians - not a Slav people - make up a quarter of the Kosova population; they resent the better employment prospects of the Serbs. Nationalist grievances have led to bitter rioting, with demands for Albanian unification only one aspect of a deeper discontent with the political situation.

In Bosnia Muslim fundamentalists were imprisoned for campaigning to establish an Islamic state, and in Croatia even the party leadership has been purged for nationalist tendencies. Separatism has grown with the conviction that Serbia receives preferential treatment, and Croats are particularly bitter about the imprisonment of several leading intellectuals. The media in Yugoslavia, however, suffers less censorship than in other communist countries, and many problems are debated in a lively and out-spoken way. Idleness, corruption, nepotism and despotism are only some of the charges levelled at party members. Ordinary workers seem disil-lusioned with the "self-management system" and claims of popular participation in government are not taken seriously since referenda are officially managed and elections no longer provide a genuine choice of candidate.

Improving labour pro-ductivity will not be easy. An labour proofficial report complained that on average one in ten of the workers in the state sector was absent and the others did less than five hours' work a day. A member of the Kraigher Commission which was charged with the preparatory work for the reforms predicted serious labour problems because the strict conditions requested by foreign creditors would have to be met. Yugoslavs can expect a drop in living standards and general demands to tighten their belts as measures are enforced to ensure the repayment of debts.

After the visit in March of the Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Tikhonov, further trading agreements were signed with the USSR, which is Yugoslavia's major supplier of oil. The need to pay in scarce hard currency is avoided by delivering in exchange a range of products from electronics to foodstuffs. But Western fears of growing econ-omic reliance on the USSR are misplaced. Diplomatic relations with the USSR are much less bitter than in the past, but Yugoslavia remains highly critical of Soviet policies. The large expenditure of manpower and other resources on defence is accepted by most Yugoslavs as necessary. Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan is subjected to repeated criticism in the media. and Yugoslavia has no intention of suffering the same fate.

Although no liberal democracy, Yugoslavia is moving closer to the West both politically and economically. This trend should be encouraged. Yugoslavia is strategically placed. Western support for it is very much a matter of enlightened self-interest.

Sir, Mr Griffin (July 27) does less than justice to those of us who serve the community as justices of the peace when he asserts that we are honours-seekers. There are countless justices who were proposed by others than themselves (myself, for example). The difference between justices and juries on the one hand and judges on the other is surely a matter of "amateur" and "professional", with the legally professionally trained judges being named. Certainly to be appointed JP is an honour - as it must be to be made Editor of the South Wales Argus (which status, incidentally, was appended to Mr Griffins letter) - but

Mr Griffin may not know that decorations are not awarded to justices of the peace for their services to the community at any time. I do hope that Mr Griffin, no doubt as dedicated as the actor he quotes, will not mind this mild

cost of power

From the Chairman of the London Electricity Board

Sir, While I cannot approve of Mr Alex Henney's enthusiasm (August 1) for a pre-publication public debate of the LEB's 1982-83 accounts (publication is on August 4). I must, to ensure an accurate public record, take issue with him on a number of points he makes to support his council's view that we should pass on our surplus to consumers in the form of a rebate.

It is not, as he implies, the practice of the board's members to "rubber stamp" reports by chief officers. The recommendation not to repay the surplus was debated long and hard before being supported.

The board did not vote "to retain the money". It decided to use the surplus to pay off its debt to Government in the firm belief that this would result in a real prospect of keeping electricity prices down in years to come, His dismissive attitude to administrative problems belies the genuine difficulties of identifying to whom a rebate should be paid. Not all consumers would have been eligible and, bearing in mind the high turnover, of London consumers, some would be difficult to trace.

These particular matters aside, it is the nature of Mr Henney's letter that disappoints me. In the last few years the board has made great strides in improving efficiency and reducing costs. (We have, in fact, reduced our staff by 1,400 and cut our costs by £14m.) Yet Mr Henney, as a member of the board and present at the debate in question, chooses to write to you in advance of the publication of the annual accounts, discusses the board's proceedings and offers a one-sided account of the process by which fellow members reached their decision on the rebate.

My colleagues and I fully accept our accountability to the public through Parliament for the performance of LEB, but the board will not function properly unless its mem-bers have respect for each other. I regret this lack of inhibition regarding the board's deliberations and urge him to have a higher regard for the confidentiality and freedom of expression without which there can be no bold thinking and effective decision making. Yours faithfully,

D. G. JEFFERIES, Chairman, London Electricity Board, Templar House, 81-87 High Holborn, WC1.

Control of asbestos

From Professor E. D. Acheson and Dr M. J. Gardner

Sir, In your brief reference to our report, "The control limit for asbestos", in your issue of July 29 you mentioned that we recommended the formal prohibition of the manufacture and importation of new products made of brown or blue

We wish to point out that we also recommended that, in view of the fact all forms of asbestos (including white asbestos) can cause cancer, the use of all types of asbestos should be curtailed as safer and effective substitutes become available and in the meantime further improvements in control should be made as advances in engineering occur.

In making these recommendations we took into account that asbestos is extremely durable and that products containing it may require further processing in circumstances far removed from its production where dust levels are difficult to control. Yours faithfully.

DONALD ACHESON, Director and Professor of Clinical Epidemiology, M. J. GARDNER, Reader in Medical Statistics, MRC Environmental Epidemiology

University of Southampton, Southampton General Hospital, Southampton.

Musical manners

From Mr N. J. Bonham-Carter Sir, I am afraid that Mr Harvey's letter (July 25) is little more than an expression of personal taste masquerading as an aesthetic judgment. If it took me no more than 30 years to like a wide range of "this stuff" (his phrase). I do not consider that this gives me any particular right to exalt my taste or judgment over that

All the same, I should be inclined to back Mr Ponsonby's judgment (July 12) of what is "alive, beautiful and necessary to our lives in the musical field over Mr Harvey's, on the evidence of his letter.

Yours faithfully, N. J. BONHAM-CARTER. Old School House, Cretingham, Woodbridge,

Limits of parole

From the Chairman of Council of the Magistrates' Association Sir, The waste of their own and the community's resources represented by offenders is at a high level and the general trend is upward.

This needs to be tackled, not only at the stage of prevention, but also at any point where the risk of recidivism can be reduced. A point where this possibility should be examined is outlined in Lord Windlesham's letter (July 21).

Rightly the suggested minimum period of eligibility for parole does not, except when they are sitting in the crown court, directly affect the jurisdiction of magistrates. The maximum sentence of six months' imprisonment which they may impose for a single offence does not

Keeping down the Science spending and tangible assets

From Professor S. J. Pirt

Sir, The latest contribution by Sir Bernard Lovell (July 30) to the special pleading by the astronomers for more resources is revealing. Sir Bernard's letter is a concoction of red herring and Marie Antoinette sentiment, "Let them eat cake", as far as scientists of other disciplines are concerned.

He attempts to divert attention from the real issue, which is that the Science and Engineering Research Council (SERC) has a cash limit and that more resources for astronomy means less for the other sciences. Shrewdly, Sir Bernard expresses the astronomers' share of the budget as a percentage, but in money terms 17 per cent of the budget now is far more than 24 per cent of the 1975

In comparison, the new field of biotechnology, which is so full of promise, received less than half of one per cent of the SERC budget last year. About that amount was spent by the SERC a few years ago on an enquiry just to show that a new radio telescope proposed for Sir Bernard's laboratory would be prohibitively expensive, It is plainly ludicrous to claim that the astronomers are not big spenders of the SERC funds. With regard to the "timeliness and promise" of the big telescope laboratories, doubts have be raised by recent disinterested analysis of their research outputs. This disturbing result has, it is clear, stimulated the research councils to commission further analyses of a similar nature. However, Sir Bernard need not worry too much because it seems that the SERC prefers to spend its money on a tangible asset, such as a telescope, rather than the intangible promise of research. Yours faithfully,

S. J. PIRT, Queen Elizabeth College. Microbiology Department, Atkins Building, Campden Hill Road, W8.

From Professor P. V. Danckwerts, FRS Sir, Sir Bernard Lovell writes to support the spending of very large sums of money on telescopes which will lead to a deeper understanding of the natural world. Similar arguments can and have been deployed for expenditure on enormous particle accelerators, or "rings" such as those built near Geneva, which remind one irresist-

ibly of Stonehenge. A small bonus

From the Reverend Julian Charley and others

Sir, If the Government is to prove its equal concern for the less fortunate members of society as for by Mr Francis Pym, there is one anomalous situation that could very simply be rectified.

As the law stands, someone drawing supplementary benefit is not allowed to earn more than £4 extra per week, whereas for those who are in regular employment there is no such limit when they take on secondary jobs. The implication of the law is that those on supplementary benefit are a drain on the state's resources and should be penalised accordingly.

It is naive to imagine that people are on supplementary benefit because of indolence. The census figures of 1981 for this Everton ward

A jump too far

From Professor N. Kurti. FRS Sir, Your article about parachutists (page 2, July 28) reminded me of the following episode. A couple of years ago I was asked by a young student to "sponsor" his parachute jump for a good cause. I told him that I refused to encourage anyone to engage in an activity which could result in injury or damage to health, but that I would send a donation to his good cause. It was a respectable

Red Cross in Thailand

From Mr William Shawcross Sir, Count de Salis, the former chief delegate of the International Com-mittee of the Red Cross in Thailand, protests too much (July 20) at my description (June 27) of the plight of refugees from Indochina today.

De Salis takes exception to my account of what happened to 20,000 Cambodians brought into Thailand and then returned to the border, even though 2,000 of them had petitioned ICRC and the UN High Commissioner for Refugees

(UNHCR) for protection.
Officials of UNHCR, of which I was more critical, considered the article was "too generous" in this context to that excellent organization, the ICRC. They complained that on this occasion ICRC showed an inadequate sense of urgency over the petitions and then pressured UNHCR not to intervene on behalf allow time for the necessary assessment. Nevertheless, if powers granted by Parliament in the Criminal Justice Act 1982 are assumed by the Home Secretary and the minimum statutory period for release on parole is shortened, this may well have the effect of reducing the number of adult recidivists

Those in prison represent inad-equate as well as deliberate offenders. Support, on release, for the former and the sanction of recall for the latter may be the best hope of deterrence from the reoffending which puts the public so much at risk. Careful thought should surely be given to a proposal which would give selected offenders, who have shown potential for that proper use of freedom which is more readily conveyed in the community than in 28 Fitzroy Square, WI.

Can it be that since World War II physics and astronomy have entered a new megalithic era: that Druids have been replaced by teams of mathematicians, physicists and crane-drivers? Having worked for a good many years in close proximity to the Cavendish Laboratory at Cambridge I remain impressed by the economy of scale, effort and finance which marked the fundamental discoveries of Rutherford, Cockcroft and Walton, and Chad-

Possibly there are some fundamental laws of physics which decree that it must become progressively more expensive to investigate the decreasingly smaller and increasingly larger aspects of the universe. I have not seen these set out. As an engineer of sorts I am reminded of the principles of "brute force and bloody ignorance" and "an ounce of thought is worth a ton of equip-

Paid jobs for all

From Mr Alan Eden-Green Sir, Why does Francis Bennion (July 28) assume that there will never again be paid jobs for all?

Certainly we can see a future in which much hitherto done by humans will be done by courtesy of the new technology. But can we not envisage a society in which the rest is roughly divided between those able and willing to work for money? Could we not devise a system whereby most people worked for about 20 hours a week (or nine months a year, say,) rather than only some of them doing 40?

It has for long seemed absurd that many industrial executives are today working a longer week than their grandfathers did. Most of them would like more leisure, more really free time, but our economic system seems to insist on putting all the work into fewer hands. It ought not to be too difficult to change that. Yours etc.

indicated an unemployment rate of 43 per cent.

The present law encourages unscrupulous employers to exploit cheap labour by offering the unemployed a bit on the side, while at the same time defrauding the state Vational Insurance contr it also promotes dishonesty in nondeclaration of earnings by those who are more than grateful to acquire a small bonus above the meagre rate of supplementary benefit. Be it noted that these secondary jobs are almost always short-term and low of the petitioners to the Thai Government.

De Salis objects to my saying that the two organizations "dithered".

Perhaps I should have said "squabbled". In any case, their ability to agree on admittedly difficult protection issues, after working for four years on the problem, is hardly helpful to the refugees. Indeed, it is shameful. My article dealt with the boat people as well as the border. It made very clear that the organisations are dependent on the will of governments and that they now have inadequate support from the western donors. The underlying and very difficult question is how long the organizations should continue collaborating with governments on policies which increase civilian suffering. Yours, custody an increased chance of supervised release.

Supervision on parole is of tried success with many serious offenders. Those with shorter sentences may well be serving a first custodial sentence or have committed crimes of lesser gravity. Offering them similar prospects of release should bring similar results.

The scheme could, of course, only be conditional upon resources for genuine and rigorous assessment in prison and for the requisite standard of supervision by probation officers in the community. The issues raised point to the involvement and responsibility of us Yours faithfully,

Parental duties and the Pill

From Mr M. L. Barrett

Sir, The assumption made (July 30) by the National Honorary Secretary of the Responsible Society is baseless. It is the responsibility of parents to imbue their children with the belief that the act of procreation is better left until maturity. If a girl under 16 asks her doctor for the Pill the assumption to be made is that her parents have either rejected that responsibility or failed in their attempt to discharge it - after some 12 years or more of trying.

It is no bad thing that the state should do what it can to avoid there being any little pieces to pick up. Yours sincerely. MARTIN L. BARRETT. Grey House, Beeches Drive, Farnham Common, Slough, Buckinghamshire, August 1.

From Mr R. J. A. Long Sir, The two court cases referred to by Mr Barker (August 1) wherein the judgments removed parental control over the children involved are fundamentally different to the action raised by Mrs Gillick.

The act of the court in these reported cases was to consider whether the natural parental authority should be overturned, thereby giving the exception to the usual rule. The courts presumably require to see considerable negligence by the parents or circumstances likely to cause obvious harm to the child before upsetting the status quo.

Gillick v West Norfolk and Wisbech Area Health Authority was an attempt to ensure that parental authority continues unless it can be proved in court that it is misplaced. There has been no such judgment in this case, or is Mrs Gillick guilty until proved innocent?

Sir, I remain, yours faithfully, R. J. A. LONG, 12/3 Craigleith Avenue South,

From Dr A. R. Rogers Sir, Your correspondent, Ian Barker (August 1), makes the point that on matters of under-age sex and contraception parental authority may not always respond in the best interests of the child. Indeed he is right, but when parents are neglectful, absent or non-caring there exists adequate legislation under the Children and Young Persons Act to bring those in moral danger and under 17 into care. Thus a doctor would be acting correctly to extend professional confidence to include those properly concerned with the care of his patient. Sadly, all too often such young people are taken into care, only to be issued contraception by the local authority. The issue of providing contraception to children is certainly one of law, but is also a testing area of whether society has the will to provide children with a fully protected childhood. For so many young people childhood seems to end at 12 or 13 and if, indeed, we lack the will or intention to provide adequate care then we must accept changes in law should allow intercourse and marriage to take place earlier. In my opinion the disappearance of childhood is the most sinister and unwelcome social trend, taking many young victims back to the pre-Victorian days of child prostitution and neglect.

Yours faithfully, ADRIAN ROGERS. Victoria Park Road, St Leonards, . Exeter. August 1.

Tax on Soviet charters

From Mr William F. Newton Dunn, MEP for Lincolnshire (European Democrat (Conservative))

Sir. The West's answer (leader, July 26) to price-cutting by the Soviet merchant fleet should be a special tax added on to the freight rates at which the Soviets charter their ships to Western customers. If the tax were levied throughout the European Community it would cover a substantial proportion of world sea trade and even more so if the United States and Japan could be persuaded to do the same. Not only would such a tax reduce Soviet price-cutting but it would also reduce their earnings of hard currencies with which to buy yet more ships from hard-pressed Western owners. Yours sincerely.

A rod in pickle

From Mr David F. Sutton Sir. Can it be that every leader writer in the country has underestimated the intelligence and political acumen of Sir Keith Joseph?

The decision announced in Corporal Punishment in Schools (report, July 29), will produce a system so potentially chaotic that no headmaster dare allow corporal punishment in his school. By one shrewd stroke Sir Keith has de facto banned corporal punishment whilst not offending the not inconsiderable Conservative body of the "hang 'em, flog 'em" brieade. Yours faithfully. DAVID SUTTON. East House.

'Improved' bread From Ms Ruth Evans and others

Sir, As representatives of organisations concerned with the welfare of different groups, we write to express our joint concern at present Government proposals for new regulations governing the composition of bread and flour.

The effects of these regulations would be to remove the requirement for the fortification and restoration of flour with certain minerals and vitamins. We see no evidence whatsoever that amongst the vulnerable groups who rely most heavily on white bread as a staple diet, the intake levels of the relevant substances are sufficiently high to justify this decision. In fact what evidence there is suggests quite the opposite. Most markedly, recent studies have shown the serious effects of poor nutrition, especially thiamin deficiency, for very elderly people. There is also substantial role in the diet of many low-income families. In particular, pressures on school meals services mean that an increasing number of children rely on sandwiches for their midday meal. We believe that any reduction in the requirements surrounding the nutritional quality of white bread and flour could have grave consequences for the health of the elderly, of children and of pregnant women and young babies.

At the very least, we would urge the Department of Health and Social . Security and the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food to defer these regulations until they can produce British evidence that levels vitamin sufficiency amongst those vulnerable groups are such as to justify removing the requirement for their addition to white flour and bread.

Beginning at 15 in the railways, he arrived as the youngest on the BR Board at the time of his appointment. His own progress was evidence of that capability for change he always sought to encourage in others.

The skill, the tolerance, the force of his personality came to national prominence in the strikes of 1982. His stand then was nothing to do with machohe-man management fashions. He fought when he had to, and not to prove himself anything. That made him one of the great negotiators of his generation. He had an evenness of temper and readiness to listen; a self confident strength that was wide enough to include his opposition, to hold to a simple vision of what was possible. He believed that management's purpose should be plain as possible. And if management dared to share its problems. that most of the working community would dare to listen.

Cliff, the fighter in modernization, actually embodied what used to be called "the ancient virtues". His openmindedness. his unswerving integrity, the quiet chivalrous spirit, the trust and the humour that he offered as a basis to any working relationship - these were his handsome mark on things. We all know that none of that would have been possible without the great love of his wife and family.

THE TIMES WEDNESDAY AUGUST 3 1983

THE ARTS

After thirty years of music hall Jimmy Jewel turned to straight acting, and tomorrow returns to the Lyttelton in You Can't Take It With You. Interview by Sheridan Morley

Marvellous on the boards

Though it won a Pulitzer Prize on its first outing in 1936, and though its current Broadway revival with Jason Robards and Colleen Dewhurst is about the best thing to be seen in an otherwise moribund. New York. Kaufman and Hart's classic comedy You Can't Take It With You remains curiously little-known over here; the National Theatre production opening lomorrow may however be about to

This is the one about the eccentric Sycamore family, who survive the Depression in New York by becoming so totally detached from reality that they cease to exist even for income tax purposes; it is a play about love and egocentricity and immigration and mild lunacy in roughly that order, and like much of the best of Kaufman and Hart it affords an entire gallery of wonderful character studies from the refugee Russian ballet-master all the way through to the mother who spends ten years as a playwright because somebody unaccountably delivers a typewriter to her front door. For the National, a starry castlist includes Geraldine McEwan, Brewster Mason, Margaret Courtenay and Ronald Hines, but the key role of the grandfather, the one being played on Broadway now by Robards, goes to Jimmy Jewel in his first return to the National and indeed the live theatre, in almost a decade.

The last time he was there was when the company was still housed at the Vic and he was doing Comedians: "We started that at Nottingham with Richard Eyre, also now here at the National, directing and Peter Hall came to the first night and asked how soon we could move down to the Vic. In fact it took about six months. because I'd already agreed to do The Sunshine Boys in the West End and they were good enough to wait for me. Mind you, that was the part of a lifetime: plays like Comedians don't happen twice. When I first read it I thought it was far too full of filthy language in the first act; not that I was shocked, but I knew that if all the rude words were spoken in the first act then the Jonathan Pryce character would never be able to use them so shockingly in the second. Eyre agreed with me and eventually Trevor Griffiths, the author, did too; one of the joys of starting out on the halls is that you learn what an audience will take and when they'll take it."

Like many of the best character actors in the business, from Max Wall

Jimmy Jewel only started in the legitimate theatre when he was way past his fiftieth birthday:

Frank Muir was then running the comedy at the BBC and about fifteen years ago he asked me to do a Variety Playhouse script called Spanner in the Works: I'd never done a play before, but variety theatres were closing up allover England, my cousin Ben Warriss was keen to end the double act and my wife and son took one look at the script and said, well, what have you got to lose? So I did it and since then. I've been an actor. The irony is that now Ben is back in the business too, acting in a summer season of Hi-de. Hi on Bournemouth pier. But we'll never do the act again. All that's over. When Ben said he didn't want to go. on with it, I thought I was finished too so for a while I went into property, doing up flats in Kensington, I trained as a master carpenter, you see, before I went on the halls, and I've always owned flats because I learnt to be very careful about the money I was making when times were good. I came from a music-hall family and I'd seen too many good comedians fall on hard times not to learn a bit about where to put the money away.

"We were really a family called Marsh, but father always worked as Jimmy Jewel. He wouldn't let me call myself Jimmy Jewel Jr., so for years, I worked as Maurice Marsh because was always doing Chevalier im-pressions then we kept changing our names on the bills so the audience wouldn't know it was all one family. Actors today don't know they're born, just having to rehearse and do one or two plays at a time; we used to have to pack the scenery, run the band calls, everything. For a while I went-off on my own, running what they used to call the 'If It' bills; for £6 a week you had to do the comedy spot in the first balf of the bill twice nightly, then you had to manage the other acts. do the paying out on the Saturday night, and if there was any money extra then you shared it out on a percentage basis: that's why they were called 'If it'.

Those were the days when I learnt to be careful about money: I used to have to go round paying out £6 a week to once-great comedians like Ernie Mayne who'd lost everything and gone so mad that he used to see imaginary income-tax inspectors hiding in dressing-room cupboards. It was a rough business. But then I met good years up the top of the bill; we never once had a quarrel, at least not when anyone else was there to see it. You have to run a double act like a marriage, stick to the rules, otherwise it all goes wrong. Mind you, by the end the whole business had gone wrong: the variety impresarios all went into commercial television and allowed the old theatres to crumble away. When I started out, there were 22 theatres in the Greater Manchester area, all with different variety bills playing twice nightly six nights a week, and all that was allowed to crumble away to nothing because they thought there might be more money

"But once you're in the theatre you can never really leave it; all the time I had out in the 1960s, doing up the flats. I felt really terrible. Thought I was dying of something. The moment the script of that Variety Playhouse came along I felt marvellous again and that's how I've felt ever since. Then after quite a lot of television acting I thought maybe I was ready for a stage play, and Bernie Delfont brought me The Sunshine Boys, which was by Neil Simon but could just as well have been written about lewel well have been written about Jewel and Warriss. It was the story of a double act, so by the time I got to the audition in New York for Neil Simon I already knew thirty years more about his play than he did. He kept asking me where I learnt the timing. Jewel and Warriss, I told him, but I don't think he knew much about the English music halls.

"Anyway be seemed to like me, so much in fact that when the Delfont deal fell through he let me buy the rights in the play myself for London and sent his own brother over to direct. Six months we did, at the Piccadilly, then Comedians again, then a lot more television plays and now this. Mind you, I made a few mistakes along the way: turned down a play at Hampstead called Incident at Tulse Hill because nobody bothered to tell me that Harold Pinter was going to direct it, and I thought who needs a play about an actor's suicide in a railway tunnel when there are three million unemployed? But I've just done a television film for David Puttnam, all about a cricket groundsman fighting for his job against a new committee, and that should be on Channel 4 this autumn.

survival, and humility. That's really all an actor needs, that and a good script. There's a book by Neville Shute called The Pled Piper, about an old Englishman leading children out of Occupied France in the war. That's what I want to do next, as a six-part television series, if I can just get the rights, I don't have any great classical yearnings: people keep telling me I'd be marvellous in Chekhov but I can't understand a word of it, and I could never get the rhythm of Shaw's language right for Doolittle in Pygmalion. Bad Language does more than draw this simple equation, partly, I suspect, lest it be found simple-minded. Unlike his Cambridge contemporary David Hare, in Teeth 'n Smiles, Mr Hughes still seems to be taken in by the glamour of the place, and to cherish the idea that the doings of the Oxbridge young are news.

As a result, he has converted particular university theme into a standard university play. The cast - students and a supervisor from the English faculty - figure as aesthetes ranged against the unseen rowing hearties. There is an old college scout, scandalized at the goings-on of the young gentlemen. Finals and the ADC production are simultaneously looming, and the supervisor is having problems with the brightest pupil.

Most of the characters are sharply drawn and played to the narcissistic, rebellious or cynical life by Mike Bradwell's com-pany. There is the golden-haired

Robin Lermitte as a Wunder kind director, projecting a precise blend of precocious authority and naked vulnerability through perfectly articulated sentences and a dandy's profile. He has an equally arresting room-mate in Kevin Whately as a working-class high flyer churned up with Lawrentian confusions. Breffni McKenna, sliding into drug addiction, and Anjela Belli, loading her beloved teacher with stolen books, likewise slide vertiginously between poise and precariousness. And there is a marvellous performance from Alan Rickman as the supervisor, laceratingly derisive on first encounter and then bringing the same quality to bear on getting them all out of trouble.

What the production is unable to do is to cut the ties between the characters and the writer. Just as Mr Lermitte and his gang of "Illyrians" are determined above all to impress and glitter, so Mr Hughes sweats like mad to give his play an amusing and provocative surface. The dialogue often seems to reflect the process of starting with a cliché and then thinking of something different,

Part of a supervisor's job is to act as moral counsellor; so, naturally, Mr Rickman has to sleep with his students. Naturally the hearties break up the ADC set; so Mr Hughes then goes ahead and electrocutes them. The writing is always intelligent, and some-times very funny. It is also strained, and leaves the real clichés (such as an attempted suicide curtain line) fully exposed. Geoff Rose's set. doing duty for tutorials, late-night drinking and theatrical dressing room, at least feels like Cam-bridge 1983.

Promenade Concert

Philharmonia/Rattle the arch-like phrases in the slow Albert Hall/Radio 3

Even the non-Russian works in Monday night's concert had Russian connexions, Britten's

Cello Symphony through its association with Rostropovich and the prejude to Janacek's From the House of the Dead through its debt to Dostoevsky. But the main work was Russian to the core: Rachmaninov's Second Symphony. I admit to looking forward to this performance with special relish. The combination of chmaninov. Kalile and the Philharmonia seemed particularly auspicious. If hopes were not, entirely fulfilled it was not so much that there were occasional orchestral blemishes but that certain passages were treated in a manner that seemed out of character with the interpretation as a whole.

The Adagio, for instance, was done with wistful restraint. The broad clarinet solo was elegantly played by John McCaw and the discreet cello and bassoon counterpoint nicely underlined. But music of similar mood at the centre of the Scherzo was heavily laden with portamentos and sounded indulgently soupy.

So, too, did Mr Rattle's long lingering at the peak of some of movement, and I wished that he had maintained at such points the more free-flowing, casy expressiveness and refined taste that he had shown elsewhere. The undulating dynamics and shifting tempos were conveyed with structural security, the orchestral detail (the yearning horns especially) pointed with discrimination; and the performance had the breadth and human warmth that seem inherent in this readily communicative music.

Human warmth is not perhaps the quality that comes first to mind in Britten's Cello Symphony, but Mr Rattle's account had a degree of tension and textural transparency that highlighted the score's symmetry and sense of inspired calculation. Cello and orchestra may well be equal partners here, but I found the ear constantly attracted by Colin Carr's impeccable playing, icily incisive, muscular and assertive.

Feelings of belplessness and rejection may also exacerbate the growth of malignant cells. It is at least conceivable that, just as the "personality" rejects anger, so the immune system may reject the knowledge of cancerous growth and thereby allow it to

Art of Cricket Fine Art Society

The British Museum's current Sporting Life exhibition seems to open up an infinitude of possibilities. Why range so widely - would there not be more than enough material in just one sport? Why be so narrow - how about including paintings and sculptures as well as prints? As though in answer to; both these questions, John Player has sponsored a sizable exhibition, and a substantial book to go with it, devoted exclusively to that most English of games, cricket. Its impact seems to have been less on twentiethcentury painters - you have to look quite hard to determine why Carel Weight's The First Cricket Match of Spring is actually so called. But there is still plenty of material left undisturbed: Sir Gerald Kelly, for example, painted some of his most evocative small panels at the Oval facing towards the gasworks during cricket matches, but none of them is included. So the way is open for further explorations - not to mention Art of Football and all the rest of the sports in turn.

A stream of City analysts has been wearing our the welcome mat at Redland this week looking for further evidence that the group has finally thrown off the affects of the recession in the building indus-

Yesterday it was the turn of Rowe & Pitman, the brokers, who followed close on the heels of De Zoete & Bevan earlier this week. According to De Zoete the building sector has under-performed the rest of the market by up to 13 per cent so far this year, but the worst may be over.

It regards Redland as a cheap long-term buy following words of encouragement from the

The group's UK operations appear to be doing well, with the recovery in Germany continuing apace. As a result De Zoete is still looking for pretax profits of £81m in the current year compared with £66.3m last Yesterday the shares responded to the news with a rise of 6p to 238p. The market was anxiously awaiting the findings snapped up. of Rowe & Pitman's trip to confirm the trend.

Fleet Holdings, up 1p at 116/pp, and Associated Newspapers, up at 4p at 415p, are still disputing ownership of a couple of hundred Reuters shares. The main area of disagreement though is how best to float the £16m issue.

The earliest opportunity for agreement will be a Renters' board meeting on September Yesterday's newcomers Polytechnic Marie made a confident start to dealings on the Unlisted Securities Market where the shares closed at 195p compared with the placing price of IIIp arranged by brokers Rowe &

The Stock Exchange has blocked broker Statham Duff Stoop's proposed placing of 3.5 million shares at 30p in Pevril, the publisher and greeting cards group. Statham say the issue was blocked on a "point of principle" and it hopes to launch the shares later this year with a full profits forecast for the year to October 31, 1984. Last night the company was meeting the Stock Exchange.

over the weekend that the group's anti-ulcer drug, Zantac speaks for about 12 per cent of the United States market in less than two weeks of sales. Shares of Bellair Cosm spent another day fluctuating wildly on takeover hopes. At one stage, the shares hit 710p before profit-taking left the final picture 30p lower at 680p. Wasskon Establishment, a Turkish controlled investment group, earlier this year bought 75 per cent of the shares from Fenton Hill International for 8p a share. Bellair remains mystified by the surge of interest which makes it the best performer on the stock market this year. Brewer Arthur Guinness fell 4p to 109p on fears that it had lost its lucratuive contract to Grand Met's Chef & Brewer chain of restaurants. Chef & Brewer is reported to have dropped the brew from more than 70 of its chain and may follow suit with the remainder shortly.

NOTEBOOK

Mr Cecil Parkinson is anxious to reestablish his message that the OFT and Monopolies Commission will be allowed to get on with their work in peace. That suits ministers but will leave industry policy, managers and city bankers in confusion.

Unitech, the electronics component group, yesterday announced details of a £6.4m rights issue, and record pretax profits of £5.8m for the year Page 15 ending May 28.

 Another union has told the Monopolies and Mergers Commission that it should rule against Trafalgar House's bid for P & O. The Association of Scientific, Technical and Managerial Staffs said it fears substantial job losses among P & O's 3,000 shore-based staff if Trafalear wins control.

BMW builds on quality for future strength.

The growing world-wide demand for BMW quality has forced us to even higher performance.
The achievements of the BMW workforce speak for themselves. Car sales rose by 8.2% to 378,000 vehicles. Turnover rose by 21.7% to over 11 billion DM. The people employed by BMW world-wide increased by 6.3% to more than 47,000.

Increased profits alone allowed us to invest more than 1 billion DM, to increase dividends, and to put substantially more money into reserves. 1982 has been one of the best years for BMW in a long succession of good years.

It demonstrates how the company has risen to meet our customers' expectations.

BMW AG

What is happening at Dunlop, Britain's ailing tyre giant which hates to be called an ailing tyre giant? The Office of Fair Trading has now rubber-stamped the purchase of 26 per cent of Dunlop shared by the cent of Dunlop shares by the well-connected company Pegi.

Two Pegi representatives were finally appointed to the Dunlop board a month ago and Dunlop is awaiting official Malaysian approval for a deal that will effectively sell half its Malaysian holdings to Pegi.

That settlement might appear to dampen short-term takeover speculation, if heightening long-er term uncertainty. But further spice is now being added by the relentless, and apparently specu-lative rush into Dunlop shares

by American investors.
On Monday, Morgan Guaranty, which makes a business of organizing American hold-ings in London companies, announced that transatlantic sources have bought up more than 17 per cent of Dunlop, using American Depositary Receipts through nominee companies. That is 5 per cent more than a month ago - and almost all acquired in the past

If you add in the estimated 8 per cent of Dunlop flowing anonymously around the Far East in the form of bearer shares, more than half this pillar of British Industry is now held by overseas interests and a quarter by seemingly speculative holders, who, the company admits, might be only too eager to accept a full takeover bid should someone, presumably Pegi, wish to make one.

At one time, American buying lifted Dunlop shares from 53p to 80p. They have since relapsed to around 62p, pricing the group at £89m where the shares yield an unimpressive 4.5 per cent. This rating is hardly justified on trading.

Pretax profits have declined every year since 1977

Since 1977, pretax profits have declined every year from £54m to a £7m loss in 1982, when the final dividend was passed. Heavy rationalization cost below the line, particularly in tyres, brought the total loss to £80m, leaving Dunlop's balance sheet uncomfortably highly geared with loans.

Dunlop has not had anything like such a bad time since the disastrous Pirelli union -married 1971, effectively sepa-rated 1973, finally divorced

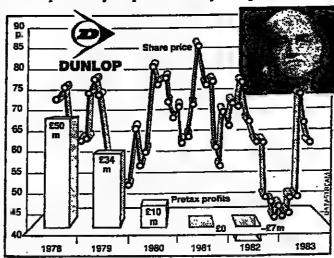

Nearly all the present trouble has been in the British and European - particularly French - tyre markets. Until the middle of 1982 it looked as though, at last, there was some recovery in these depressed markets. But the second half of last year proved with a vengeance that this was not the case. After a first-half profit of £4m, the group lost £11m in the second half - almost entirely due to renewed depression in tyres.

Sandy McLachlan

Outsiders put more pressure on Dunlop

American speculators are rushing to buy the apparently unattractive shares of Dunlop, Britain's ailing tyre multinational. Will they aid a takeover, or have they misread the intentions of Dunlop's newly acquired Malaysian partner?

Sir Campbell Fraser: Malaysian ailiance

British tyre division lost £13m and the French side a further £9m. It was left to Dunlop's other divisions, mainly indus-trial, consumer, and engineering, to make up some of the

The tyre market remains depressed despite the present boom in car sales. France is going through a particulary difficult time - Michelin made a loss of £354m in its latest financial year and it is unlikely, proportionately, Dunlop will have done much better.

In Britain, there has been some improvement in volume terms both in the original equipment market and the replacement market, but in each case price levels remain wor-

It is estimated that there is a 20 per cent worldwide overcapacity in the tyre market and much of the surplus is dumped in Europe, Indeed, competition within Europe is fierce: at times, currency movements have made it possible for Germanmade Dunlop tyres to undercut British-made Dunlops in Britain and the Germans have not been slow to take advantage.

Over the past few years Dunlop has cut its British tyre workforce by two-thirds to just under 4,000, but the group has forecast still further "radical restructuring" in the British and European tyre divisions, Although it has not been spelt out, this restructuring will include dropping some product lines and the loss of still more jobs.

Moves are likely to be spring, partly to keep as low a profile as possible, Dunlop's chairman, CBI president Sir Campbell Fraser, has had enough of a high profile over his salary increase at Dunlop at a time when the group was registering record losses. In any case, the group's high gearing is not condusive to further big write-offs — at least until Dunlop's has had the cash from its deal with Pegi.

Once approved by the Malaysian Foreign Investment Committee, this would put its 51 per cent shareholding in Dunlop Malaysian Industries Berhard (DMIB) into a new company which it will jointly own with Pegi.

The first step has already been taken in Ireland. The Cork-based operation has announced that there are serious doubts about its long-term viability unless it can bring in a partner and Ireland's Industrial Development Authority is try-ing to find a third party. Should it fail, speculation that the operation may fold may not be far off the mark, although Dunlop will not comment.

With tyres at least getting no worse, and better contributions from the rest of the group both by product and geographically - there is no doubt that Dunlop has done better in the first half of the present year than in the second half of last year, although it will not match the £4m before tax earned in the first half of last year.

The figures, published next group back to a near break-even position, although some analysis are still not looking for analysis are still not tooking for much better than a £2m loss.

It is, therefore, American and Far Eastern promise that is sustaining the share price and, of the two, the former is the more mystifying. Dunlop has had no success in tracing the buyers through the nominees, but there are some indicators but there are some indicators (not least from Morgan Guaranty) that point to widespread small buying rather than the purchase of a single stake.

For a start, any American group wishing to buy a strategic stake would surely not be clumsy enough in execution to push the share price up by 50 per cent along the way. Second, the company has had numerous phone calls from apparently individual American shareholders wanting to know just what this company does be-cause they have bought shares

One theory about the attraction of the group in the United States is that it is a dollar stock (and Dunlop is valued at around $1 at present price and exchange rates) with a hightechnology stake in the next generation of Boeing aircraft through a contract to supply the

On the face of it, the situation in the Far East is clearer, Pepi's request for representation on the Dunlop board was reasonable, given its stake in the company, and makes sense, given that the two companies are jointly to share control over DMIB.

Pegi has repeatedly assured Dunlop that it has no intention of bidding for the whole group and, indeed, the renegotiation of terms over DMIB (Pegi was originally going to buy the whole 51 per cent direct from Dunlop) was to prevent Pegi having to make an offer to outside shareholders in DMIB.

Malaysian blessing could make Dunlop more takeover prone

For Dunlop, the most pressing need now is to achieve that official approval. Not only will it receive £55m in cash denominated in nice comfortable Swiss francs, but it will realize a £24m surplus over book value which can be offset against rationalization costs (A fact which may cause unease among at least some of the 3,750 people who still work at Fort Dunlop in Birmingham).

When it comes, the Malaysian blessing will give some relief to the hard pressed balance sheet but, on the other hand, it could make the company even more takeoverprope than it is.

With net assets per share of 265p a share and little chance of a Tilling-type profit forecast while the tyre market remains so depressed, Dunlop is likely to remain a takeover prospect. Indeed, the present weakness of the European tyre market, which any bidder would inherit. may be the group's strongest Managers and city folk who worry about present uncertainty should not build up their hopes. The trouble is that, with their wide public interest tests, the OFT and the Commission are obliged to interpret industry policies which do not appear to exist. To clarify the guidelines would be to clarify the policy and that is not likely to happen.

At present both the OFT, in recommending references, and the Commission, in judging them, must subconsciously adjust to changing priorities on such things as employment in the regions versus rationalization.

As previous ministers discovered, statements of policy are a hostage to events. It is much easier to allow the Commission and OFT, which aim to treat each case on its merits, to tread the narrow path between random ad hoc-ery and rigid policy-making.

Today, Britain's needs point in two, occasionally conflicting, directions. There is a strong need to make old industries and business sectors more efficient

Peel Holdings, whose shares were suspended over a month ago, return to the listings as a fully fledged property development and investment group next Tuesday. Shareholders approved the acquisition of minority interests in Abbeygate and the takeover of the John Bright Group and Grainstone on Monday.

This move turns what was once a ragbag of companies based on the Peel Mills into a property development group specializing in free standing retail developments. The group has a planned development programme amounting to £19m, about £12m of which is store schemes. At the heart of this expansion is Mr Peter Jevans, joint managing director of Abbeygate Securities and on the main board of the group.

Under the enlarged group, after the issue of 5.8m new Peel shares worth £12.5m at 210p a share, Peel will have net assets of £22.3m, the equivalent of 269p a share. The directors are forecasting profits of £1.05m for the current year to March

All development is funded internally through mediumterm loans. The group has outstanding borrowings of £4.5m although this is expected to rise to £14m.

When shares were suspended in June the middle market quotation was 215p, a higher han average 25 per cent discount on the new estimated asset value of 269p. On this basis investors must express a degree of caution, but Peel's involvement almost entirely in the retail market probably has greater chance of long-term growth than companies developing suburban and provincial office buildings.

- * Footwear turnover for the year showed an increase of 5.7% which was again a record. The relaxation in credit control and the lower interest rates did not actually benefit us in the footwear retailing trade, * During the year three new branches were opened
- and in two towns we relocated our existing branches in better positions. Seven branches with poor trading prospects were closed. Plans are in hand to open four new branches this year and to relocate seven.
- * Motor trading tumover for the year was also a record and showed an increase of 27.8%, and here we did benefit from the relaxation in credit control and lower interest rates.
- * The turnover for the first ten weeks of the current year has shown an increase of 9:3% for footwear trading and an increase of 2.6% for motor trading. The tumover increase in our footwear business must lead us to a degree of optimism for the current year's profit.

Three reasons why Hampshire may feel more at home

The luck of the draw gives necessary intrigue to three out of four of the NatWest Trophy quarter-finals to be played today (Wed). The meeting of Gloucestershire and Hampshire, for example, would be less well balanced if it were to be played at Southampton. were to be played at Southampton rather than Bristol.

As it is. Gloucestershire deserve some fortune, not least because of the haphazard manner in which they went out of the Benson and Hedges Cup (did Graveney keep the coin which settled their fate?). Their opponents, who have yet to reach a Lord's final, may well have been the side they wanted to face at the time of the draw. Whether that will still be the case after their trials of the last three days is another matter. Hampshire, at the moment look pretty formidable, Greenidge and Smith cannot stop scoring runs, and Marshall cannot stop scoring runs, and Marshall cannot stop wanting the bail. It is like a drug to him. They are three good reasons why Gloucestershire will be hard pressed to win, unless of course Zaheer outshines them like he outshone Gower in the previous round at Gower in the previous round at Graveney, who missed the championship match at Portsmouth should have recovered after a shoulder injury and Stovold, but on the hand by Marshall, will play. Home advantage could make all the difference in the Northampton-shire v Middlesex tie. It is time

Northamptonshire's powerful batting tine-up put on a concerted show. They will be at full strength, Lamb having returned from

Middlesex are, of course, the most successful team in the country championship. It was on June 14 that they last won a championship match – against Somerset. And so to Canterbury, scene of vet another cup-tie. This one, between Kent and Warwickshire, would, it seems, have been better balanced had it been played at Edgbaston.

Kent, however, have problems with injures: Dilley will be given a pain-killing injection this morning to determine whether he is fit. In New Zealand's second innings on Monday he bowled despite a bruised heel. Brian Luckhusrst, Kent's manager, is aware that if he plays today, his chances of being fit for the Lord's Test next week will be diminished. It is one of those club versus country dilemmas that have bedevilled football managers.

Benson, one of Kent's in-form batsmen, injured an ankle while fielding at Chesterfield on Monday, and may not play. Similarly, Warwickshire are struggling to get Old, one of the more injury-prone men in the game, fit again after a Middlesex are, of course, the most successful team in the country at present, and are favourites to win this trophy. They are, though, still without Butcher. Today Emburey looks likely to bat at No 5 - a tribute to how his batting has improved, but not, perhaps, to the strength of the middle-order. Sussex, who play Somerset at Hove, will be without le Roux, their South African fast bowler, who has been told to rest for the rest of the season. He has been troubled by a groin strain all summer. It means that Reeve, their 20-year-old medium-pace bowler who was formerly on the Lord's ground staff, will probably get a game. It also means that Imran may be asked to do some howling. If only off a few men in the game, fit again after a shoulder injury. do some bowling - if only off a few paces. There can be fewer better places to appreciate Minor Counties cricket than Lakenham. My first visit there held only one disappointment. The printing of the scorecard on the ground, which used to be updated throughout the day, ceased in 1981. Otherwise, Lakenham lives up to

What if you chose Hewlett-Packar as a business computer partner?

You too will see results you can measure.

Using an HP 3000 for labelling shoes is just one example of the way Hewlett-Packard computers produce measurable results in specific business applications.

But the HP 3000 Series computers are not just dedicated systems. They're full-capability business computers. They can support one user-or 144 users. They're designed to be the heart of HP's Interactive Office, where word processing, electronic mail, business graphics, personal filing and time management can all be integrated with your data processing.

Talking business with Hewlett-Packard.

When you open up discussions with HP you're talking face to face with a world leader in business computation. But one with a very personal approach to business problem-solving. Massive, dedicated resources support our equipment. A powerful service organisation supports you.

Here, in Britain, HP runs a highly developed training programme for over 3,000 people every year. A separate HP company specialises in providing flexible purchase/leasing arrangements tailored to individual customer needs.

When rain halted the qualifying round of the amateur 4,000 metres pursuit at the national track championships in Leicestershire yesterday the fastest time had been set by Malcolm Elliott, from Sheffield, the double Commonwealth Games road champion. His time of 4min 59.141sec made him the only one of the 95 starters under the matter and the second five minutes, and was excellent in the windy conditions.

Elliott returned to track racing only last weekend, and as a warm-up to the pursuit be started in the up to the pursuit be started in the one kilometre time-trial on Monday night. It was just a fraction too fast for Mark Barry.

The major surprise of Monday's rain-delayed session was the defeat of the world road race champion, Mandy Jones, in the women's 3,000 metres pursuit by a teenager, Barbra Collins from Lincoln. But Miss lones was unruffled by her defeat. The difference was that Barbra had prepared for it, and I hadn't", she said. "If we had raced on Sunday, as was scheduled, perhaps I would have done better. But on Sunday night we got flooded out at the camp site, and before the final I had a little accident in the car park, and

In the final Jones had started as fast as usual, but she had no reply to the smooth-pedalling Collins, "She just goes faster and faster," said Miss Jones. "In contrast. I reach a plateau and can't get any faster." On Monday night Jones's plateau was not quite high enough, and she suffered her first pursuit defeat by a British rider in four years.

Americans run adrift in murky water

With only one day and two half-course races remaining in the elimination series preliminary round to produce a challenger in the America's Cup at Newport, Rhode Island, that historic competition is living up to its reputation for controversy. The New York Yacht Club (NYYC), if they cannot find a rule to snooker the opposition, are prepared to invent one: and the Brits once again cannot seemingly make up their minds who s chiefs and who Indians. their minds who shall be

The former situation finds the British firmly aligned behind the Australians in calling the Americans cads while the latter has the more neutral and objective Americans wondering how we ever got ourselves organized enough to win the war (the one where they were on our side). In between the two controversies Peter de Savary's quiet smile of optimism remains as wide as Rhode Island Sound.

The carefully stage-managed yet none the less clumsy release of a private letter from the commodore of the New York YC attempting to discredit the legality of the design of Australia II, emphatic leader of the elimination series so far, if not actually tohave her disqualified because of her innovative keel, clearly demonstrates the anxiety of the Americans that they may, after 130 years, finally surrender the trophy the regulations will be masts, which is worth many millions and then sails. He claims that their new Proctor mast, specially lightened, will make "a significant difference", giving Victory "83 a five or 10 per cent improvement. Meanwhile the contro-versy over the helming of the British boat continues. Yesterday Phil Crebbin was back in the after-guard alongside Lawrie Smith for the first race of the critical final four, against Challenge 12. This meant that Smith's partnership with Rodney Pattisson, successful against Canada two days ago after a disastrous start, has one again been discarded. It is becoming increasingly apparent, however, that the rest of the crew are split more or less evenly on whether Partisson or Crebbin should be sharing the helm with Smith. It is regarded as imperative by many of those with experience on the sidelines that de Savary must now make a decision on his first choice for the semi-final round. As one of the squad said recently:

"The difference on the boat is between the more extrovert want to think about it. There are some people on the boat who regrettably have now contributed as much as they might have.

Smith and Pattisson have made no secret of their preference for each other, and it is also apparent to the careful observer that Crebbin, one of the best starting belmsmen in the competition with a highly intelligent approach to match racing, is hardly overwhelmed by his popularity among the

One of the squad said yesterday: "Up till now it has been possible to justify the interchanging of helmsmen but now it is necessary to make a decision. I think de Savary knows this too, but whether he's prepared to we shall have to wait and see."

Reaching for the key to Florida

GOLF

By John Hennessy Golf Correspondent

Three young men reached out yesterday for the £1,000 prize that goes with the national assistants' championship, sponsored by Foot-Joy, at Coombe Hill. They were Gary Coles, of St George's Hill, Bryan Lewis, of Panshanger, and Ian Grant, of Orsett, all with 71, one over par for the 6,256-yard Surrey course. Their horizons are wider, however, for the tournament, resuscitated after a lapse of a couple of decades in a more authoritative form, carries also the entrée to the world assist-ants' championship in Florida in December.

Lewis, the first man to strike a ball yesterday, became the first man to set the standard. He comes from Nick Faldo country, Welwyn Garden City and would have occupied Faldo's usual position this year — in spendid isolation at the top — if it had not been for five at the

The main difficulty of the hole, only 390 yards, is that one plays from a valley on to an invisible green. Lewis, in his own words, "quit on the shot" and dragged it into a bunker, whence he came out well short. Thus the delight he derived from a six-iron to 10ft for a two at the previous hole was short-lived. On reflection he no doubt has good cause to be satisfied with his final score.

Coles, son of Neil, played well as befits a man who came to Coombe Hill hard on a victory in one of the Open championship qualifying tour-naments. However, he had little success on the greens, brought to superb condition by expert greenkeeping. Coles had one had hole, the fifth, where a snap hook off the tee planted him among the trees and destroyed

Grant modestly owes it all to his caddie, or so he says, since he could not otherwise have got away with 26 putts, Another distinguished offspring, Duncan Muscroft, had a disastrous round of 82.

But for my money the most stirring effort of all was Noalcoholic's victory in the Sussex Stakes. For that was from the word go in a group one championship event. Victories in the Prix Messidor at Maisons Laffite, the Lockinge Stakes at Newbury and the Challenge Stakes at Newmarket have shown Noalcoholic to be every bit as effective racing over a straight mile as he was nipping around Goodwood's right-handed dog leg last Wedlnesday. So Deauville's straight should be no bother.

Sadly, for European breeders, it is still Nonicobolic's American owner, William du Pont's intention to stand his horse ultimately in Australia. ## Watson is born again and ready to join immortals

Los Angeles (Riuter) — A resurgent Tom Watson will this week attempt to become only the fifth player to win all four major titles when he tees off in the United States PGA Championship tomorrow. Victory would put Watson alongside his fellow-Americans, Jack Nickhaus, Ben Hogan and Genc Sarazen, and the South African, Gary Player, in a grothy who, in addition to the PGA fitle, have won the US. Open, US Masters and the British Open.

After a lackiustre first half to this season Watson sprang to life in lume by finishing second in the US Open; he repeated the performance in the Western Open; and in his last outing three weeks ago he continued his domination of the British Open with his lifth vicorty in the game's most hallowed event.

Watson was delighted that the PGA event was being played at Riviera, dubbed "Hogan's Alley" after the legendary golfer who won two Los Angeles Open here in 18 months. "It's one of the best-designed courses in the world," Watson said. "It makes you play every club in the bag." Victory at Riviera, the country club of the Hollywood stars, would also give Watson his minth his give Watson his with 17 and Walter Hagen (with 10) alread of him.

Nickhaus, however, is determined to make his young rival wait another year, at least to atone for the deleast milhted by Watson in the 1977 and 1930 Masters, the 1977 British Open and his year's US Open. Other favourites include Larry Nelson, who won the title two years ago and edged Watson in this US Open; Hal Sutton, who Jeads the US money charts this year in only his second season; Lanny Wadkins, twice a winner this year and second in the money list; and the defending champion, Ray Floyd.

Faldo, winner of four European events, feels ready for a breakthrough on the US tour while a second Briton. Peter Oosterhuis, comes into the reckoning by finishing seventh in the Canadian Open.

Dutch ban on golfers

The Hague (Renter) - The Dutch
Government have banned 15 South African golfers from the Dutch
Open championship, which starts in African gollers from the Dutch Open championship, which starts in Zandvoort tomorrow. The govern-ment last mouth refused a visa for the South African golfer, Ian Palmer, and said the refusal would also apply to any other applications by South African golfers.

The government have asked all Dutch sporting organizations to avoid contacts with South Africa. A foreign ministry spokesman said the visa applications were refused first because they were South African sportsmen, and secondly because no world championship points were at stake in the tournament. South Africans have recently been allowed entry for the Dutch grand prix gramme.

I unissan Open in April.

In Johannesburg, the South African PGA tournament director, Dennis Bruyns, said the Association would hold talks next week with officials of the European tour on the ban. "At the moment, they are ready to act if a golfing body differentiates against us, but it seems there is not much they can do if a government refuses us visas," Bruyns said.

Fie said the bans would mean South Africans would have to resheedule their touring pro-

Girl with a model game for clay

Indianopolis, Indiana (Reuter) The unsceded teenager, Camille Benjmin, beat the sixth seed Helena Sukvova, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1, to achieve the main upset on Monday in the second round of the United States clay court women's championship.

Miss Benjamin, aged 17, lost in the first round of the qualifying turnament here last year but has now developed an aggressive game built around a strong topspin forehand. It was good enough to heat Miss Sukova, 18, who is rated twenty third in the world.

Mis Benjamin, who is fifty first in the world, had lost the only previous meeting between the two but that was on grass in Australia last

Miss Benjamin came back from 2-5 in the first set. She saved a set point in the ninth game and went on to win four snaight games for a 6-5 lead. Miss Sukova held service after two deuces to force the set into the tiebreak. The American took quick control, winning the first five points and taking it 7-3.

The second set was almost identical as the Czechoslovak took a 5-3 lead. Miss Benjamin broke service in the ninth game but then lost her srvice and the set at 15-40

before losing her service, but she fought back to win the match that lasted one hour and 45 minutes.

The defending champion, Virginia Ruzici, of Romania, is seeded fourth this year and she reached the fourth round with a 6-2, 6-4, victory over Raizella Reggi, of Italy.

Those who watched until Cloud Howe trailed into the mist of the Mearns test year, will be thankful that its heroine, Chris Colquohoun, has now returned, etched in GREY GRANITE (BBC 2, 8.00pm). Leslie Mitchell's politically committed trilogy, A Scots Quair, written under his Lewis Grassic Globon pen-neme. has been transferred to the screen with unusual authenticity by BBC Scotland, even down to a decade's lapse between the first two books, (Sunset Song was produced in 1972), during which actress Vivien Helibron gracefully aged in league with her character, in this immaculately produced three-part conclusion, she and her grown-up son Ewan have moved to the fictions factory town of Duncalm, where the Depression and working class desperation forge a hard edge to the

By Barrie Clement Labour Reporter

Mr Len Murray, general secretary of the TUC, will today make a personal plea to the leaders of the National Graphical Association for a return to work at the strike-bound Finan-

Mr Murray is due to go to Bedford to confront the execu-tive of the NGA, the union at the centre of the nine-week stoppage, which is threatened with expulsion from the TUC.

He will tell them that not only is his personal reputation at stake, but also the image of the labour movement.

Mr Murray underwrote an independent mediator's report which the union said that it would "respect". But the docu-nient endorsed the management's offer of £304-a-week for the 24 machine minders at the centre of the dispute, and the union refused to accept it.

Th TUC general council last week formally advised the NGA to resume work and the union's national council is today discussing its response.

Mr Murray will tell the print union leaders that, if they do not accept the peace formula, they will probably be expelled from the movement tomorrow by the general council of the

NGA sources were yesterday predicting that Mr Murray's personal plea will be of no avail and that the union is already looking to the full TUC Congress next month to reverse any general council decision to expel it.

Meanwhile, the company's plans to produce the normal European edition of the paper in Frankfurt without the NGA have gained little support.

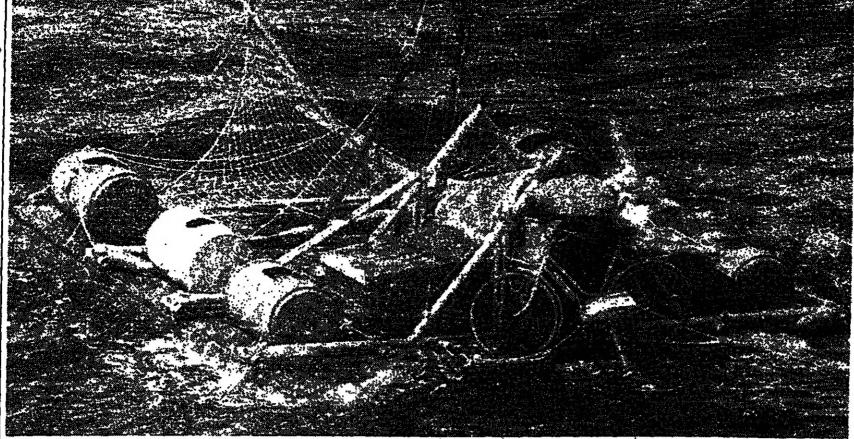

Mr William Keys, general secretary of Sogat '82, a rival print union, says the TUC would have to add to its expulsion order a recommendation that the other unions cooperate with the management's plans.

Even then the idea would have to be considered in the light of the NGA's threat that it would "close Fleet Street" if other workers broke the strike.

Mr Alan Hare, FT chairman and chief executive, said that if there was no agreement to produce a non-NGA paper by the end of this week, there would be lay-offs.

Steadying management's hand,

A raft made of six oil drums with a bicycle lashed to its makeshift deck in the Channel off Brixham yesterday on its way from Germany to Portugal, It was manned by Herr Gunter Meisef of Freiburg, who told a concerned Royal Navy boarding party that he was fit and needed only cigarettes.

away in a day or two unless someone is there to find them."

Dr Norman said that there was concern about the long-term future of the fossilized

"The University Museum at Stuttgart in West Germany has a large fund for buying foreign fossils and it is possible it would be prepared to offer a lot of money for a dinosaur like this - many thousands of pounds."

He had told Mr Chase that the Oxford museum would buy the Iguanodon and display it. "We can only offer him £900 by comparison to the big guns of Stuttgart.

"It is so important that we would put it on display here. If it went to Stuttgart it would just be stuck in a drawer and conserved to be available for research. We are hoping to persuade Nick that to have £900 and have it displayed is worth more than having it disappear to Stuttgart."
Some British fossil collectors were already said to have sold parts of collections to the West Germans, he said.

By a Staff Reporter The discovery of the Iguanodon came about in the simplest of ways when Mr Nicholas Chase was strolling along an Isle of Wight beach. He noticed what looked life.

He noticed what looked like a reassembling exercise during bone protruding from part of which Mr Chase spent hours the cliff face which had hammering away with chisels hunter, quiet and shy, who likes have been in an earlier age.

He opted for that particular branch of palaeontology two years ago. Before that, his hobby experiments had taken him to astronomy.

Mr Chase left East Anglia University two years ago with nothing to look forward to but unemployment. Today life is different with the knowledge of his find and the possibility that be may soon have a job. But there are still two problems Confronting him.

The first is that the skeleton of the dinosaur is not complete, the remaining bones could be lying on the beach at the whim of the tide or the attention of amateur palaeontologists.

He says that he has not been able to carry on his work this summer because of the number of tourists, and fears that if the site is publicized the collection will be put at risk. The second problem is what to do with his find and whether to accept any money for it.

Dr William Ball, Keeper of Palacontology at the Natural History Museum, said last night that if the dinosaur had been found on the beach he would consider the finder to be the

Coe says illness may end his career

feeling so tired that he can hardly climb the stairs, that it is difficult for him to know whether he is feeling "normal" or actually unwell.

But when on Sunday he ran the perfectly judged 800 and made his familiar attack on the final bend, only to finish fourth and looking as if he were running in soft sand, then the full force of his private nightmare could no longer be ignored. The truth was, as in the European championships in Athens last year, that his body had lost the ability to reproduce past extravagances, and had no hope of recovering in time for Helsinki.

"Of course it hurts when younger runners like Elliott are suddenly going past you, and on Sunday I knew that all arguments about tactics were now empty."

When, two weeks ago, he withdrew from the Helsinki 1,500 metres race, he still considered that he would be in sufficient form to justify himself over 800 metres in Finland.

After all, he had run the world's fastest time of the year, 1:43.80, in Oslo only a few weeks ago, and even at less than his best had still surely to be the favourite.

Had he not been cleared by the hospital on his last blood checkup last April, had he not had fortnightly tests for several months after glandular fever was diagnosed after his defeat in Athens last August? in Athens last August?

He said yesterday: "Two weeks ago I began to wonder about my condition. My preparation had not been all it should have been because of a stomach strain, and I decided with Peter to cut right back on training, just to keep sharp and fast, because even in comparison with past experience I was feeling more tired than I should

"I spent several days feeling reasonable, and then had a spell feeling rough. I suppose you do not want to admit these things until you actually come to a grinding halt, yet compared with the seasons of 1980-81, you could say I have not felt totally well since July 1982."

The hurt of the past two days lies not only in the end of the ambition to win the major 800 metres race which had chuled metres race which had eluded him in Prague, Moscow and then Athens. It is, without doubt, the end of the love affair with his favourite event, the on-he regards as the perfect combination of sprinting ability and stamine. and stamma.

"I feel very upset", he said.
"As far as the 800 metres goes, the game is up. Helsinki would have been my swansong.

"I have been obliged to walk away from an event which I did not believe I had yet fully explored, and I believe that when fit I have still reached nowhere near my potential over 1.500 metres.*

The other burt has been the behaviour of some of those once regarded as friends, who, hours before the announcements of his iliness became public, were denigrating him as a has-been.

Looking forward to the Olympic Games in Los Angeles, Coe said: "Whether I would run the 1,500 or the 5,000 metres would all depend on what the specialists have to say, what they consider might be the body's reaction to moving up to the endurance demands of the longer race. We will just have to wait and see.

"For the moment, all they will say is that when I come out at the end of this week I must cut back on the tennis!"

It will be a tragedy if we have It will be a tragedy u we have seen the best of Sebastian Coc already, for he is only 26 and should be in his prime, as Peter Snell was when he did the Olympic double in 1964. But Coe has been running a cricket pitch length faster than Suell and there is no knowing what that effort has done to so frail a frame. Those who have been thrilled by all that has gone before must now wish him well.

Argentine boats stopped

Argentine fishing boats were intercepted by a British frigate near the Falkland Islands and forced to leave the 150-mile exclusion zone, a Buenos Aires radio station reported yester-

Radio Continental broadcast a radio-telephone interview with the captain of the Argen-tine factory ship Ribera Vasca, who said his vessel and another Argentine fishing boat were Souther stopped 10 miles south-west of Sound.

Mr John Patten, parliamentary secretary for health, yesterday advised people going to Greece and to all Mediterranean countries to take precautions: Eat freshly cooked foods and avoid raw vegetables, salads and unpected fruits, raw shellfish, cream, milk, underdone meat and fish; drink boiled or pottled water and remember that ice cubes can be contaminated; be vaccinated, ideally four to six weeks
